Hoover and Curtis Prosperity—More of It Coolidge Knew It Safe at Fifty

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET, now complete, reads Hoover and Curtis. Senator Curtis from Kansas, whose genial "Howdy, men," is known to thousands of friends, was nominated on the first ballot, with 1052 votes.

This puts an out and out farmers' candidate on the ticket. It does not mean dissatisfaction with General Dawes, for there is none.

The Curtis nomination is an effort to "do something for the farmer."

The Republican slogan for this campaign is to be "CONTINUED PROSPERITY—AND MORE OF IT."

That's enough of a slogan. People decline to think about more than one thing at a time. And when prosperity is the issue they don't want any other.

If Democrats are wise, they will promise "Continued Prosperity—with a Great Deal More of It Than the Republicans Ever Dreamed of."

In his fine telegram of congratulation to Herbert Hoover, President Coolidge expresses the thought of citizens: "Your great ability and wide experience will enable you to serve our country with marked distinction."

President Coolidge has known for months that Herbert Hoover would be nominated. The President, who has been a candidate for office 20 times and never defeated, understands politics. That is more than you can say for some gentlemen from New York State and elsewhere.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company yesterday insured a man past 50 for $1,500,000. A few generations ago, when the second biggest city in France had no inhabitant over 50 years of age, such insuring would have been financially suicidal. Men live longer, intelligence counts. A wise man at 50 is a safer risk than a fool at 25. And the Metropolitan has promoted longer living by intelligent health advertising.

Our prosperity is real. In May General Motors broke all records, delivering 224,094 cars, the third successive record-breaking month, as announced by President Alfred P. Sloan, Jr. The total sale of cars in May was more than 443,000.

Henry Ford is now turning out his new car at the rate of 3000 a day. But there will be a shortage, in good makes.

This country needs 5,000,000 new cars every year at a minimum, even if the total number exceeds the present figures, 24,000,000. Get your car.

In New York a young man, brought into court by his father, admitted that he had an income of $400 a week, and employed his father as hostler to take care of his saddle horses. His excuse was that the father had not led a moral life. The Japanese religion that includes 20 different kinds of hell probably would find one especially prepared for him that wouldn't include any saddle horses.

Delegates, according to H. I. Phillips, must watch their steps in hotel lobbies. Several have cut their feet on fragments of broken gin bottles. When a delegate or welcoming friend lets the bottle slip out of the paper crossing the lobby, it breaks on the stone floor.

However, the Republican platform says: "Rigid enforcement of the prohibition law." So there is nothing to worry about.

Fundamentalists will read with joy, and hold it under the noses of doubting modernists.

The Munson liner Munamar caught a big tiger shark. Hauled on deck it expelled from its stomach and mouth a good-sized turtle. The turtle is at this moment alive and swimming in New York's Aquarium.

If an inferior modern shark can swallow a big turtle and return it alive, why should not a huge fish, created especially for the purpose, swallow Jonah, take him ashore and release him less injured than he would have been by a ride in New York's crowded subway?

ENGLAND CAPTURES WIGHTMAN CUP

Wimbledon, Eng., June 16 (AP)—England today captured the Wightman cup, signifying women's tennis team supremacy, by winning four out of seven matches from the United States.

The English gained the coveted trophy by downing the American defenders in the final doubles match in which Mrs. M. Holcroft Watson and Miss Eileen Bennett defeated Miss Helen Wills and Miss Penelope Anderson, 6—2, 6—1.

Miss Bennett and Mrs. Watson literally raced through the match to win with unexpected ease. This deciding contest which it had been expected would be hard fought lasted only half an hour. The Americans in the Wimbledon stands could hardly believe their eyes as Miss Wills and Miss Anderson dropped

5-MILE AREA IN RUINS, HUNDREDS FLEE DEATH WHEN DIKE CRUMBLES

Kennett, Mo., June 16 (AP)—A desperate fight for homes and crops was lost early today when the St. Francis river levee, six miles northwest of here gave way, spreading waste and destruction over a five-mile area.

Hundreds of families have been driven from their homes.

Weakened by seepage which persisted in spite of anything that could be done by the 3000 farmers, professional and business men who labored on into the night, the levee wall crashed at 1:30 a. m. today.

The crevassee, 150 feet wide at the start, had quickly increased to 300 feet.

Two score workmen who were on the dyke at the time it went out were warned as the dirt began to move and had fled to safety as the wall they were strengthening collapsed before the pressure of the crest of the flooded river.

A proclamation was issued by the Mayor of Kennett early today asking all business houses to close and requesting that all available men be sent to strengthen the levee in anticipation of the third rise, which is expected to reach its highest proportions Tuesday or Wednesday of next week. Authorities believe the crest of this flood will be a foot and a half higher than the one which swept the levee aside this morning.

Hub Girl Is Forced Down in Plane

Compelled by a burned out connecting rod bearing to make a forced landing, Lieut. Crocker Snow, piloting a Challenger biplane owned by Skyways, Inc., carrying Miss Lillias Moriarty of Brookline as a passenger, brought his ship down safety in the grounds of the Unicorn Country Club at Stoneham today.

The plane was bound from the Boston airport to the new airport at Lawrence when the trouble occurred and Lieut. Snow was forced to seek a landing place. He descended in a perfect landing on the ninth fairway of the golf links, hardly shaking up his fair passenger. The couple returned to Boston by automobile and a new motor was rushed out to the ship so that the flight to Lawrence might be concluded.

Fannie Ward Out $50,000

London, June 16 (INS)—Fannie Ward, the eternally youthful stage star, lost a $50,000 diamond necklace while en route from New York aboard the liner Berengaria, she revealed upon arrival from Southampton.

The necklace, she said, disappeared from her jewel case under mysterious circumstances. Cunard officials are investigating.

POWER TRUST AND NEW HOOVER PARTY REGIME SCOURGED BY NORRIS

Washington, June 16 (AP).—Dissatisfied with the Republican platform and with the party nominee, Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, in a statement today declared that the action of the Republican convention at Kansas City "will be a sad disappointment to every progressive citizen in the United States."

A "direct slap" had been given the farmers at Kansas City, he said, at the same time deploring silence on the activities of the power interests, disregard of the disclosures made by the investigation of the naval oil leases and silence as to Boulder Dam, Muscle Shoals and the "lame duck" constitutional amendment.

Beginning with Senator Fess, Ohio, Senator Norris made attacks on Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney-general; Senator Smoot of Utah, chairman of the platform committee; William M. Butler, Bascom Slemp and Irvine L. Lenroot, former Senator from Wisconsin.

"Senator Fess, the keynoter of the convention, defended Daugherty on the floor of the Senate," he said, "and opposed the investigation."

"Mabel Walker Willebrandt, chairman of the important committee on credentials—the committee that was careful to seat all the Hoover delegates from the solid

POWER TRUST TRIED TO CENSOR SCHOOL BOOKS

Washington, June 16 (INS)—The so-called power trust attempted to root out of textbooks information about slush funds and bribery of public officials by utility companies before these books were distributed among school children, evidence before the Federal Trade Commission disclosed today.

Utility propagandists also prepared and submitted to an author revising the text material emasculating his discussion of the dangers of watered stock, and attempted to teach the children that excessive rates were a thing of the past.

A discussion of limited franchises, objected to, actually was deleted, in addition to a reference to Samuel

South—while she was assistant attorney-general of the United States went to New York to testify in behalf of Daugherty.

"Senator Smoot, who was chairman of the platform committee and was one of Hoover's lieutenants, was disclosed in the oil investigation to have gone secretly to Fall's apartments to advise with him about his defense.

NAMES "BOSS" VARE.

"When the psychological moment came, it was no other person than "Bos" Vare, the leader of the Philadelphia political machine—the man who, on account of the disgraceful proceedings in the Pennsylvania primary, was excluded from the United States Senate—it was this same Vare who compelled the Pennsylvania delegation to go solid for Hoover.

"Then there was Bascom Slemp, famous for his handling of presidential appointments in the solid South and one of the principal cogs in the Southern political machine, using his influence, his power and his knowledge to secure Hoover delegates through the instrumentality of the disgraceful office-holding, political combinations in the Southern States.

"Ex-Senator Lenroot was selected to go to Kansas City and represent him (Hoover) in the contests that came before the convention.

"He was part of the big Hoover steam roller, and when he went there and while he was engaged in putting the Hoover delegates across his pockets were lined with a $20,000 fee that he had received from the Water Power Trust to lobby before a Senate committee."

ATTACKS POWER TRUST.

"The rank and file of the great Republican party will be disgusted and humiliated," Mr. Norris continued, "but the power trust, as well as the Hoovers, Daughertys, the Sinclairs, the Dohenys, the Falls, the Smoots, the Hayses, the Lenroots, the Fesses, the Moseses and the machine politicians everywhere will be happy and delighted.

"If this program is endorsed at the polls, it will be the duty of the Senate, when it reconvenes in December:

To apologize to Power Trust Insull and his man from Illinois, for whose election he contributed more than $100,000; to seat Boss Vare, the representative of the Philadelphia political machine; to reinstate Daugherty.

To apologize to Sinclair and Doheny and to pass a law returning to them the property which the Supreme Court of the United States said they had fraudulently obtained; to give a certificate of character to ex-Secretary Fall; to ask for the pardon of Miller, who had been sentenced to the penitentiary; to destroy the incriminating evidence which investigation brought forth of the fraudulent profits of O'Neil and Stewart.

"To invite Blackmer to return from his hiding place in Europe and to receive him in good society with open arms; to condemn the Supreme Court of the United States for declaring the Fall Sinclair-Doheny deals were disgraceful and fraudulent; to call upon the Federal Trade Commission to cease its investigation where it is disclosing the sinister attacks upon our Government by the Power Trust, and to ask forgiveness for all its activities in disclosing fraud and dishonesty in high official places."

Hoover Manager May Be National G. O. P. Chairman

Washington, June 16 (INS)—Many of the big details of the Republican convention will be mapped out here in conferences of Herbert Hoover with other G. O. P. leaders starting Monday.

James W. Good of Iowa, Hoover's convention manager, is expected to arrive Sunday. A delegation selected from the Republican national committee will confer with Hoover Tuesday, when the national chairman will be named. Good is spoken of for the post.

Hoover was in his office early again today, attacking the accumulation of work that piled up during the convention. The Secretary succeeded in making up a lot of lost sleep last night and is beginning once more to "settle down" to normal after the nerve-wracking drive for the nomination.

A large crowd was gathered in front of the Commerce Department for Hoover's arrival and he got a small ovation. His appearance in public is calling for frequent demonstrations around the capital.

Whether or not Hoover will resign from the Cabinet before he goes to Palo Alto, Cal., for a month's rest prior to opening of the campaign has not been determined. This probably will be worked out at the political parleys here next week.

Apparently Hoover will remain in Washington for two weeks or a month, according to his secretaries. It must be determined before he leaves what kind of campaign will be conducted—an old-fashioned stump speaking drive,—a front-porch affair, or a radio campaign.

It probably will be a combination with a wide use of the radio whenever Hoover appears. Hoover was the American "Radio Czar" before the Federal Commission was established by Congress.

There was some speculation here as to whether Hoover would stop at the Summer White House in Wisconsin on his way to the West Coast.

Jones Says Hoover Is Easy to Defeat

Houston, Tex., June 16 (INS)—Jesse H. Jones, vice-presidential timber of the Democrats, believes that if his party could have dictated the Republican nominee for presidency at Kansas City it would have chosen Herbert Hoover, "as the man easiest to defeat."

"Hoover is the heir apparent to the last two administrations," Jones said today, and in addition to his own extreme unpopularity with the farmers by reason of his unfair treatment of them during the World War he will be saddled with all the liabilities of the Harding and Coolidge administrations, having had a very prominent part in both of them.

"If the Democrats could have dictated the Republican nomination, I have no doubt that Hoover would have been selected as the man most easily to defeat."

Hoover and Smith Both 'Germans,' Berlin Claims

Berlin, June 16 (INS)—The next President of the United States will be a German, according to the claims of various members of the German press.

Whether the Republicans succeed in electing Herbert Hoover or the Democrats sweep in Governor Al Smith, the result will be the same, these papers claim.

Smith, they say, is the son of a German immigrant. His mother, they condescend to admit, was Irish.

Hoover's ancestors, they aver, were named Huber. The Hubers migrated from Baden in 1740.

Sneeze, Don't Cough While Beach Cop Is Measuring Skirts

Evanston, Ill., June 16 (AP)—Evanston, where the dawn comes up like thunder out of Benton Harbor across the lake, will do its swimming this season under the regulatory eye of the Bureau of Recreation.

Ah, yes, the rules, well—

Bathing suits must descend to within at least seven inches of the feminine knee. Bathers must not roller skate on the beach sidewalks.

Citizens must not cough while at the beaches. This will be enforced, says the bureau, whether the cough is a "sudden, noisy and violent expulsion of air from the chest," or one of those hacking, cigarette things.

NORTHERN BAPTISTS IN CONVENTION AT DETROIT

Detroit, June 16 (AP)—Expressing renewed confidence in the unity of the faith of Baptists, W. C. Coleman of Wichita, Kan., president of the Northern Baptist convention, opened the annual convention today with a plea for "sympathetic understanding of the difficulties involved in the management of church organizations."

The title of honorary president of the Woman's Home Missionary Society was conferred upon Mrs. Georfe W. Coleman of Boston. Her successor as president is Mrs. George Caleb, wife of the pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church, New York City.

FULLER SIGNS CONVICT LABOR WAGES MEASURE

The bill providing wages for convict labor in the State Prison and in the reformatories at Concord and Sherborn was signed today by Governor Fuller. The rate at which the inmates will be paid has not been disclosed. The signature of the Chief Executive ends a bitter controversy of years. Proponents of the measure asserted it would effect rehabilitation of the criminal while labor leaders condemned it as an unfair element of competition in industry.

LOS ANGELES LEAVES ON AIR TRAINING TRIP

Newport, R. I., June 16—The dirigible Los Angeles, which tied up to the mast of the U. S. S. Patoka in this harbor at dawn today, took off from its moorings again shortly before noon on what officials of the local naval training station characterized as a "training flight." The area in which the dirigible would cruise was not disclosed, but it was stated the craft would return to its base at Lakehurst, N. J., at the end of the run.

M'NARY VISITS HOOVER; YIELDS IN FARM FIGHT

Washington, June 16 (AP)—Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, co-author of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, vetoed by President Coolidge, conferred with Secretary Hoover, Republican Presidential nominee today. McNary, after the conference, said he found Secretary Hoover "sympathetic and anxious to relieve the distress of our farm population."

A statement issued by the Oregon Senator after the conference was accepted as indicating he was willing to abandon the equalization fee of the farm relief bill.

"In my judgment the enactment of the bill that passed the last session of Congress with the omission of the equalization fee would improve the condition of agriculture," McNary said.

"At least it would supply the basis upon which helpful legislation could be fashioned."

McNary said if the remedy was tried and found ineffective, in his opinion, Congress and the administration would unite to devise a more effective remedy that would prove sound.

"In the absence of the President, who I believe to be in accord, I have discussed the subject with the Republican nominee, Mr. Herbert Hoover, and found him sympathetic and anxious to relieve the distress of our farm population, and I bespeak for 7,000,000 farmers and their able leaders the same fine offer of assistance and consideration to the end that farm relief legislation may be enacted and approved at the next session of Congress."

19 CASH REGISTER MEN FACE CONTEMPFT TRIAL

Cincinnati, June 16 (AP)—Trial of 19 present and former salesmen and agents of the National Cash Register Co. of Dayton, O., on charges of contempt of court, will be called September 24 in Federal court as the result of a mandate of the U. S. Supreme Court. The mandate directed the U. S. District Court to proceed with trial when it reversed the decision of Judge Smith Hickenlooper, who dismissed 18 of the 19 men.

They are charged with having committed acts in violation of an injunction issued in 1916 in the government's anti-trust suit. This injunction restrained the company and representatives from doing anything to restrict trade and competition. Defendants include Harvey S. Crocker and Charles R. Moore, both of Boston.

Woman Who Taught Him Lauds Curtis' Ability

New Bedford, June 16 (AP)—Among hundreds of congratulatory messages to Senator Curtis, Republican nominee for Vice-President, is a letter from one of his oldest and most loyal friends, Miss Eunice A. Lyman, 77 last October, who taught him when he was a freshman in Topeka (Kan.) high school, and has since kept in touch with him.

Miss Lyman, many years a Fall River teacher, lives now in Kensington, Ct. When news of Mr. Curtis' nomination reached her, she lost no time in writing congratulations.

"Of course, I am delighted," she said today. "I've already written to Mr. Curtis. I have told him experience has showed that we need a Vice-President of presidential caliber, and I believe we will have one, for I believe he will win the election."

When Miss Lyman lauded Mr. Curtis four years ago, upon his succession to Henry Cabot Lodge as leader of the United States Senate, and the newspaper account reached him, he exclaimed warmly, "Miss Lyman was the best teacher they had in Kansas. She was more than a teacher. She knew how to inspire and encourage as well as to teach."

BELIEVE NOBILE PARTY IS NOW NEAR RESCUE

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, June 16 (AP)—Speedy rescue by air of Gen. Umberto Nobile and five men adrift with him on the ice seemed today to be possible.

The large twin-motored Savoia-Marchetti flying boat, en route from Milan, left Vadsoe, Norway, at midnight for a 12-hour flight to Kings Bay. This is the first plane available considered of sufficient size to pick up the marooned men.

At Kings Bay preparations were made for the speedy departure of the plane to the castaways. Provisions, shoes, medicines, guns and collapsible rubber boats were ready to be stored aboard the plant for its flight of some 220 miles to the region north of North East Land, where Nobile and his men are stranded.

The flying boat has a radio and in its search can be guided by the base ship, Citta Di Milano, which has been in touch with Gen. Nobile by wireless. From Nobile the exact position of the castaways and ice conditions in their neighborhood will be cleared to aid the plane as it flies northward. Latest advices indicated that the northwest wind was opening up the ice field, making rescue by plane practicable.

It was estimated that Major Maddalena, the Italian aviator flying the huge seaplane, would soon be able to search over a wide area. It was therefore hoped that in addition to aiding the Nobile party he might locate two other groups of survivors of the Italia, the party of three who started afoot toward North Cape and the seven men who were carried to the east in the drifting airship.

HUB GIRL'S HOP MAY BE HELD UP FOR DAYS

Trepassey, N. F., June 16 (AP)—A delay of several days in the departure of the monoplane Friendship for Europe appeared probable today in the light of reports of unfavorable weather at sea. Pilot Wilmer Stultz said that it was impossible under these conditions to set a definite date for the hopoff with his companions, Miss Amelia Earhart and Louis Gordon.

The visibility here today was excellent and there was a strong breeze from the northwest. Stultz and Gordon spent part of the day aboard the plane making repairs to the radio equipment, which was not working properly during the test flight over the harbor on Thursday.

Harbor Grace, N. F., June 16 (AP)—Tentative plans for a takeoff for Europe tomorrow morning were announced today by Oliver Le Boutillier, pilot of the monoplane Columbia. Le Boutillier, with Miss Mabel Boll and Arthur Argles, copilot, gave up any idea of flying today because of unfavorable weather reports from ships at sea.

The weather here this morning was partly cloudy with a fresh north wind. The fog which prevailed along the coast yesterday disappeared during the night.

Le Boutillier said that if condition were right the start would be made tomorrow morning at 5:30 o'clock, eastern daylight time.

BRIDE PLEADS NOT GUILTY IN SLAYING

Arraigned in Municipal court on the charge of murdering her husband, Lyle Davis, with a carving knife, Mrs. Florence Davis, a six months' bride, became hysterical today.

It was necessary for Court Officers William Crowley and Edward Hayes to support the trembling woman as she fought her emotion, and pleaded not guilty.

At the request of Sergt. Arthur Timmins of East Dedham st. station, Judge James Devlin continued the case until June 19, and Mrs. Davis was remanded to the House of Detention without bail.

According to Capt. John Driscoll of East Dedham st. station, the girl wife confessed to him she had slain her husband by attacking him with a knife in a Washington st. lunchroom where he was employed as a chef.

They were married last January. Davis was an ex-service man. The wife said they had been happy until about six weeks ago, when, she asserted, he began drinking, beating her and refusing to give her money, and intimating he had been seeing other women.

Margaret Annis of Motley st., Roxbury, a waitress in the restaurant, and an eye-witness, said Mrs. Davis entered the lunch room and started to upbraid her husband for drinking and failing to bring home his pay. Davis started for the kitchen, witness said, and his wife followed. Seizing the carving knife she gashed him in the throat and breast, and then fled.

STATE CHARTERS $250,000 WEBSTER AIRPORT CORP.

A charter of incorporation was today issued by the Secretary of State's office to Webster Airport Corp., Oxford, and an office in New York. The capital is fixed at $250,000. The incorporators are Ernest E. Smith, Daniel W. Lincoln and Elizabeth A. Bennett, all of Worcester.

POPE RECEIVES FR. WALSH ON RETURN FROM RUSSIA

Rome, June 16 (AP)—Pope Pius today received the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, Georgetown University professor, who has been in Soviet Russia regarding Catholic interests there. Father Walsh, who was born in Boston, Mass., first went to Soviet Russia in 1922 for famine relief work and later was named by the Vatican director-general of the Papal Relief Mission to Russia.

Memphis, Tenn., June 16 (INS)—With 1500 people homeless near Newport, Ark., as a result of a break in the White River levee, 3000 laborers were working today to prevent a dozen more threatening breaks in the upper St. Francis, White and Black River levees.

Damage of more than $1,000,000 to crops has resulted from water flowing through old crevasses.

POWER TRUST TRIED TO HUSH TEXTBOOKS

ALTERATIONS PROPOSED.

These radical alterations were made and attempted in Howard Copeland Hill's "Community Life and Civic Problems," studied by more than a million high school pupils. They followed the reaching of an agreement with representatives of Ginn & Co., publishing 12,000,000 textbooks annually, to permit "suggestions and changes," according to the record.

Although these were stated not to be binding on the publishers, the propagandists represented them as "a tremendous leverage on any other house should opposition occur."

The campaign to revamp textbooks was defended in large part by E. F. McKay, manager of the Oklahoma Utility Information Bureau, on the stand. McKay testified he had not "supervised" textbooks in his state, adding:

CONSIDERED IT PROPER

"But I would have considered it a proper activity."

Fred R. Jenkins, chairman of the "textbook committee" of power lobby organizations, testified many of the proposed substitutions were drafted by him and Bernard J. Mullaney. Both are Chicagoans. Mullaney is Insull's right-hand man.

The section of Hill's book in which changes were demanded by the committee was Section 3, titled "Government Control of Transportation."

DUPLICATE SERVICES.

In his draft Hill espoused the view that telephone or street car companies duplicating one another's service were undesirable.

This argument for either public ownership or public control the committee proposed to transform into an argument for permitting high capitalization of merged utility companies, giving the merged company more leeway in exacting high rates.

PUBLIC PAYS THE FREIGHT

Proposed substitute paragraphs read in part: "The cost of duplication of any utility service is usually paid for in the end by the customer as either from the lack of profitable business or by authority of the community the two companies are merged into one oftentimes. However, the one company must carry the capitalization of both companies, upon which they must base their rates or earnings."

To drive home this contention with the school children the committee cited an alleged instance where a utility company was not permitted by law to "sell its assets" to another company and its stockholders "lost practically all of their investment."

On the heels of the argument for combining capitalizations came a proposed paragraph intended to show that utilities seek to give the consumer lower rates.

It recited that "minimum progress and development is secured at high rates, and maximum progress and development at low rates, as low rates stimulate use and increase volume which decreases cost."

Notations on the manuscript stated that the substitute paragraphs were not used.

REACH HUB WITH 2 NEW PLANES

Making the last lap of the trip from Kansas City, Mo., in one hour and 30 minutes, from Schenectady to Boston, two American Eagle airplanes were delivered to the Bay State Flying Service.

One plane, flown by Bert Kogle, transport pilot for the factory, led the way for the other ship, flown by W. G. Macdonald of Kansas City, with Carl Foster of Woburn, the owner, as passenger. Macdonald's plane was forced down once, in Hamburg, N. Y., with a broken water line, and this was the only untoward incident in the whole flight.

The planes left Kansas City Tuesday morning, were held up at Buffalo Thursday by bad weather, and landed at the Boston Airport last night.

Kogle, making his second trip to this part of the country, said he didn't mind the trip over the Berkshires, where a forced landing generally means a crash, but he did mind landing at the Boston Airport, because of its small size.

The trip took 14 hours and 55 minutes flying time.

ROUTES AUTOS FOR LOWELL AIR MEET

William F. Williams, State commissioner of public works, in anticipation of the great trek of automobilists to the air meet and exposition, June 21 to 23, at the Lowell airport, today suggested that these routes be used:

From Boston, Route 3B, via Wilmington and Tewksbury to Astle st., Tewksbury, to Billerica st., to parking place. Or, Route 3, via Burlington and Billerica to first fork beyond railroad crossing north of Billerica Center; thence over Billerica st. to parking space.

From North Shore, Route 128, from Salem to Wakefield; 129 from Wakefield to Reading; 123, from Reading to Wilmington; thence over 3B into Tewksbury to Astle st. in Tewksbury; to Billerica st., to parking space. Alternate route—follow Route 114 to North Andover, thence over 139 to Lowell; thence follow police traffic routes to the field.

From Haverhill and points north and east, take Route 125 from Haverhill to North Andover; thence over 139 to Lowell; thence follow police traffic routes.

From points west, Route 110 to Littleton Common; follow route 110 into Lowell, thence over police traffic routes.

From Worcester, follow Route 12 and Route 110 to Lowell, thence over police traffic routes.

From points southeast of Boston, take Route 126, which starts at Uxbridge at junction of Route 122; follow 126 to Chelmsford; thence over 110, then follow police traffic routes.

From points north of Lowell, follow either Route 3 or 3B to Lowell, thence over police traffic routes to airport.

LYNN BOY WED UNDER NAME OF BROTHER

A marriage tangle in Lynn, in which a youth who is a minor was wedded under the name of his older brother, was revealed today.

In addition to the mixup over the name of the bridegroom, it was learned there is also a difference over religions.

The bridegroom is Donald L. Morse, 18, of Euclid ave., who was married to Miss Mary S. Fannon, 19, of Fuller st., by the Rev. Edson R. Leach, pastor of the First M. E. Church of Lynn.

According to Lynn City Clerk Joseph A. Attwill the young couple applied for a license on June 2, the prospective groom giving the name of Robert L. Morse, 22, and his parents as Fred C. and Mellie A. Morse.

Later Mrs. Morse notified Clerk Attwill that it was Donald who had applied for the license under his brother's name. She was instructed to have the license returned, but the same day the couple were married.

Parents of the girl, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fannon, declared that the remarriage would be resolemnized at the Sacred Heart Church, Lynn, where their daughter is a parishioner. Meantime there is the question of the bridegroom having been married under the wrong name.

A conference has been arranged Tuesday between the interested parties and City Clerk Attwill with City Solicitor Patrick Shanahan, and an attempt will be made to straighten out the tangle.

FORM OF PRAYER MAY BE NEW

New York, June 16 (AP)—The chief difference between the English and the American revision of the prayerbook of the Protestant Episcopal Church is in the clause relating to the consecrated bread and wine of Holy Communion, the Right Rev. Charles Lewis Slattery, bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts, explained today.

Bishop Slattery said the English revised prayerbook, which was rejected by Parliament Thursday for the second time, provides for reservation of the bread and wine, while the American revision "makes no such provision."

The revised American prayerbook is to be submitted to the 49th triennial convention of the church in Washington in October.

"We shall have a greatly improved book," Bishop Slattery said. "Without losing the power of Archbishop Cranmer's prose we shall be free from many archaic expressions which have lost meaning for our time or are misunderstood. . . . Without ceasing to be the book of the ages, the prayerbook becomes also the book of this generation."

Halts Flight to Mexico

POLICE NAB ONE IN RUM CHASE

Despite the fact that he cleared a 10-foot fence on the run, successfully maneuvered an automobile of ancient lineage across two or three acres of railroad tracks and was able to keep going after a fall into a ditch, Officer Bernard McGinnis of the police headquarters liquor squad lost the prize in an amateur obstacle race early today in South Boston.

Two brother officers, Patrolmen Frederick Hollien and Arthur Eunson, saved the day for the raiding squad, however, by bringing home the "bacon" in the person of Joseph Walsh, Havre st., East Boston, on the charge of transporting liquor.

The three officers, touring South Boston on duty, recognized a machine on Second st. as an old offender in the liquor traffic and started out in pursuit.

Hollien and Eunson, when they got alongside, jumped on the running board, placing Walsh under arrest, but his companion fled.

Officer McGinnis gave chase along First st., through a dump yard, across a high fence, over the freight yards of the New York, New Haven & H[illegible]ford railroad and out into an o[illegible] field.

W[illegible]in grasping distance of the fleeing man, McGinnis tripped and fell headlong into a deep ditch and his quarry disappeared. McGinnis was treated for cut and bruises.

DON'T FORGET TOMORROW IS FATHERS' DAY!

Fathers' Day will be observed tomorrow.

What a change is there, my countrymen.

A few years ago they were singing ribald songs about the old man, such as, "Nobody Works but Father," and now they are setting aside a day for his exclusive entertainment and benefit.

In another few years, it may be, father will be permitted to smoke all over the house, and be invited in to tell stories when important visitors are being received.

However, tomorrow is Fathers' Day and special observances are to be held in the churches, while families everywhere will attempt to lighten his burdens with kind works and gifts, such as neckties, cigars, etc.

The day may not prove an unmixed blessing for some fathers, because a special effort will be made to get them to go to church. Many a respected head of a family, weighted down with cares, will prefer to grab his golf bag and hurry away to the links, while others prune trees and shrubs and enjoy their favorite pastimes of "pottering around."

No special rules seem to have been laid down for the occasion, so a strong-minded father, no doubt, can veto distasteful family suggestions with impunity.

He may refuse to wash the car or take the family out riding after he has done so, claiming with more or less justice that it is his day, and he is entitled to do as he pleases.

It is a safe bet, however, that if left to himself he will follow his customary routine, all plans to the contrary notwithstanding.

COUNTRY CLUB IS MECCA FOR SOCIETY

Eastern Horse Club Officials, Who Direct Clyde Park Events, Deserve to Have Names Inscribed in Letters of Gold for Perfecting Arrangements; Many Weddings of Interest on Society's Schedule

NOT IN THE GREEN OF THEIR HANDSOME LETTER PAPER, BUT IN LETTERS OF GOLD DENOTING HIGH ACHIEVEMENT, SHOULD NAMES of Eastern Horse Club members be inscribed. This band of horsemen, enthusiastic promoters of race meets, has arranged with faultless perfection the countless details two days of racing at the Country Club entails. And follows up with Raceland day in Framingham. John Macomber, president; Bayard Tuckerman, vice-president; Augustus F. Goodwin, treasurer, and William Almy, Jr., James W. Appleton, Charles S. Bird, Jr., John B. Bowditch, Benjamin L. Cook, Richard E. Danielson, Augustus Goodwin, B. Nason Hamlin, A. Henry Higginson, John Macomber, Pierpont L. Stackpole, Bayard Tuckerman, Henry Vaughan and Bayard Warren, governors, are those to be honored.

LOVELIER BRIDAL ARRAY THAN MISS HARRIET ROYCE WEARS WHEN TODAY she met Philip Theopold before the altar would be difficult to picture. Typically the bride of June was she in diaphanous tulle and exquisite rose point lace deepened to soft ivory by time's passing. Rare and beautiful lace was in deep pointed gauntlet cuffs on fingertip sleeves, and deep pointed yokes on the bodice. Beautifully blended were oyster white of tulle and ivory of lace; and a modist inspired to array so statuesque a bride charmingly added an enormously long train that really was the skirt of the gown trailing tulle lengths up the aisle.

THE BRIDESMAIDS BEVY WORE CHIFFON FROCKS ALL FLUTTERY WITH trailing ends and shady hats, dashingly French in color effect. Orchid tints, the deep purplish blue and mauve-pink of tropical exotic colorings, harmonized well and lighted up Saint Paul's with distracting blobs of color. Velvet shoes that duplicate velvet hat ribbons, and arm loads of June blossoms added to the breath-taking beauty of slowly moving processional.

AS HONOR MAID, MISS EVELYN JOYCE WAS IN THE RETINUE, WHICH WAS otherwise femininely composed of Miss Catherine Hall, Miss Alice Hall, Mrs. Frank A. Royce, Mrs. Frederick C. Dumaine, Jr.; Mrs. R. Colgate Vernon Mann and Mrs. John Brooks. A dozen ushers, decoratively perfect from boutonniere to spats, included well known young men, local and out of town, such as James C. Taller, John T. Pratt, Malcolm Greenough, Henry M. Bohlen, Frank G. Akers, Benjamin F. Rice Bassett, Hugh Whitney, James Bangs, Robert Hallowell, Arthur Hobson and Frank Royce.

MANY WHITE CLAD BRIDES YESTERDAY AND TODAY GIVE TO THE SOCIAL theme a note distinctly romantic. Serious eyed they march altarward; joyously they and their spouses just acquired endure the ordeal of good wishes. Dawn pink and sea blue on bridesmaids complemented prettily Miss Ellen Frothingham's taffeta and tulle and lace when she and William D. Dunnell were wed in Arlington Street Church yesterday. Miss Olga Frothingham was in pink; Miss Anne Frothingham, Miss Eugenia Frothingham and Mrs. Everard Upjohn were arrayed in blue.

BRIDE'S LACE SYMBOLIZED THE BEAUTIFUL AND THE SENTIMENTAL. A museum piece, cherished by former generations of Frothingham, and worn by Mrs. Dunnell in sweeping veil over a train enormously long and graceful. She is second daughter in the Dr Langdon Frothingham family, is gifted musically, belongs to the Vincent Club and the Junior League, and precedes by a few months Miss Olga Frothingham in the altar trail. After the ceremonial, guests went over to the Beacon st. residence of the Frothinghams to offer good wishes.

A GARDEN PARTY RECEPTION FOLLOWED THE CHURCH CEREMONIAL THAT made Miss Lorna Mead Underwood and Andrew Galbraith Carey one. Like so many enormous, riotously tinted blossoms, garden umbrellas burgeoned out on the Loring Underwood lawns and through the gardens, and guests reveled in a perfect June setting for merry al fresco windup to churchly solemnity. The Underwood estate in Belmont and the pretty little Unitarian Church are near neighbors, so guests had but the shortest of journeys from one to the other.

THE BRIDE MOVED THROUGH THE CHURCHLY SCENE LIKE A PICTURE OF medieval stateliness. She carried a cluster of calla lilies that harmonized perfectly with the gown's sweeping length of train and creamy satin richness. The veil was a misty cloud of tulle. Miss Esther Underwood as honor maid; Mrs. Hunter McAlpine, 3d, as honor matron, and Miss Laura Harding, bridesmaid, matched the glorious June sun in frocks of yellow and flame chiffon. Leghorn hats drooped becomingly above them.

SOME STUNNING FROCKS SUPERLATIVELY WORN ADDED THEIR BRILLIANCE to the wedding picture. Mrs. Loring Underwood, mater to the bride, was in a fluttery chiffon of the smart beige, topped off with a matching hat. Miss Claribel Walton, aunt to the bride, was in a beige lace creation, with brown hat. Mrs. William Underwood's orchid chiffon frock and hat were feminine bits delightfully in the picture. Mrs. Francis Davis wore coral pink and black hat.

MR. CAREY'S FELLOW BALTIMOREANS CAME UP IN NUMBERS TO GIVE HIM support at the altar, and incidentally to dress up the scene as only severe masculine habiliments can. A stunning corps they made—with Francis J. Carey leading off as best man for his brother. A. Morris Carey, Reginald Carey, D. Luke Hopkins, Edward K. Dunn, Dr George Finney, Benjamin H. Brewster and James McHenry were the Baltimore contingent in the top-hatted staff which performed church and reception duties with utmost savoir faire.

RICHARD EHRET, JOHN WHELEN, PHILIP WALLIS, E. SUYDENHAM PAGE, JR. Frederick Lincoln, Jr., Thomas N. McCarter and David H. McAlpin, 3d, gave the squad some of its Philadelphia and Gotham sophistication. Out-of-town guests in the company were as numerous as important. Mr. and Mrs. William Gridley, Mr. and Mrs. J Harris Harding, Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Borden, Mrs. Fahnestock of New York and Newport, Mrs. Frederick Lincoln, Mrs. Philip Wallace and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cottman were among them.

PRETTY, GOLDEN-HAIRED MISS SALLY SHAW IS A VERY RECENT AND VERY attractive addition to the bride list. She and William Faversham, Jr., are to have the prettiest of country weddings on Monday week. Out at Nine Acre Corner in Concord, where several Shaw estates converge, and their combined acres will serve beautifully for the al fresco aftermath of nuptial vows. Miss Shaw is a daughter of the T. Mott Shaws. She came out a year or two ago, has traveled much abroad, is popular and pretty, and has more talents than fingers.

WITH EXACTITUDE MR. FAVERSHAM'S NAME INDICATES HIS DISTINGUISHED stage parentage. The well-known actor, William Faversham of notable revivals, is his pater. And William the younger is likely to be another stage star some time, if he continues along the path he now is following. Some very remarkable contracts for Gotham appearances, recently signed, have, so I believe, hastened the wedding day, which was to have been indefinitely in the future.

BOSTON'S NOBLESSE SEATED TODAY IN TRINITY CHURCH PEWS INCLUDED all the Higginson kin and many of the distinguished allied lines, as marriage vows were given and received by Miss Joan Higginson, daughter of Francis Lee Higginson, and Alexander Mackay Smith, of New York and Tuxedo. The bride's forebears form a Bostonian background formidably aristocratic, and Mr. Smith's lineage is equally distinguished, though of New York.

BRIDE SATINS, HEAVY AND SHIMMERING AND CREAMY, SOME YARDS OF beautiful fabric brought from France, was deftly fashioned for Miss Higginson's altar trip. The train was long, commencing at the shoulders and held to the waistline, and continuing into two graceful pointed ends of a long train almost concealed beneath billows of French veiling that is the misty veil. Long sleeves to the fingertips and a single ornament of real pearls further distinguish the gown's studied simplicity.

A BRIDAL DINNER JUST A FEW DAYS BEFORE THE WEDDING ITSELF enlivens pre-nuptial hours for Miss Emily Wentworth and her intended, Hugh C. Fox, Jr., whose marriage comes next Wednesday at the Harvard Church in Brookline. Mrs. Guy Warren Walker, Jr. (Nancy Vose), was hostess, and she is herself still in the bride category, since the honeymoon is, according to romantic ideals, of several moons duration, and she wore bridal white only a short time ago.

THE WENTWORTH-FOX ALLIANCE IS ANOTHER OF THE EXTREMELY interesting inter-city sort to vary the romantic tale a bit. Miss Wentworth is the daughter of Mrs. George Wentworth, and Mr. Fox, destined for the diplomatic corps, takes his bride immediately to the Continent, where his mother is the Countess [illegible] de Pourtales, and where studies and final polishing for diplomacy will occupy his time for several months to come.

NEW ENGLAND DELEGATES UNITED IN SUPPORT OF G. O. P. TICKET

MOSES BECOMES BIG FACTOR IN RANKS OF HIS PARTY

By ELIAS A. McQUAID

Kansas City, June 16—Confident that all six states will be found in the Hoover and Curtis column in November the New England delegations are speeding eastward today to tell the folks at home all about the Kansas City convention.

The men from Massachusetts may also be able to explain why there was no mention here of a Channing Cox-for-Vice-President movement—outside of the columns of the Missouri newspapers—and why the name of Governor Fuller was withdrawn before it could be voted upon.

But these, after all, are minor matters. The big thing is that a ticket has been named which commands the respect of the country, which apparently takes care of the threatened bolt of mid-west agriculturists and which in the opinion of Republican statesmen and politicians assures the G. O. P. of a triumph of Coolidge proportions in the fall.

If New England failed to place a favorite son on the ticket it did the next best thing by nominating a favorite father-in-law.

The speech in which Mrs. Leona Curtis Knight of Providence, R. I., seconded the nomination of her distinguished father for Vice-President was the shortest that has been made in this town since last Monday.

More than that, the daughter of Kansas whom New England has taken to its heart was the youngest and most prepossessing person who addressed the convention.

Mrs. Knight's message was one that could be delivered in 32 words, and in 32 words she delivered it.

SECONDS NOMINATION.

She came upon the rostrum, she was presented to the convention by her daddy's good friend, Senator Moses of New Hampshire, and while the assemblage was still admiring her beauty she had spoken her piece and disappeared.

"I am asked by the Rhode Island delegation," she said, "to come to the platform and second the nomination of my father, Charles Curtis of Kansas, for Vice-President of the United States."

That the "Senate crowd" had greased the way of the Republican leader of the Senate to the nomination was apparent when the moment the roll-call began, Alabama "yielded" to New Hampshire and the Granite State promptly "passed."

The arrangement had been made for Alabama to "yield" and Judge William P. Britton of Wolfeboro, N. H., to rise and nominate Senator Moses.

An understanding had been arrived at between the national leaders, however, so late that while Judge Britton had been let in on it there was no time to get word to the Alabamans, well back in the hall. It was clear enough, to the initiated now, that Moses was getting out of someone's way and, in view of all the "Curtis talk" by which the newspaper men had been impressed, that this some one could be no one less important than the Senate leader.

Moses, ten years the junior of the Kansan, has four years left of his second term. Granite State Republicans say he is likely to be returned again and again. The supposition is that eventually he will hold Curtis' present position as Republican leader.

MOSES NOW A FACTOR

His masterful handling of this convention has made him as well known to party leaders and party workers throughout the nation as he long has been known to Washington and, being still a young man—as United States senators go—he can afford to wait.

The way men were "entered" for the vice-presidential stakes, only to be withdrawn again, was a caution to all beholders.

If it were not for its tragic side, for men of 60 years and past cannot relish being publicly tossed about in this manner, the thing would have been laughable. It was as if, at the race track, a fast track suddenly had been turned into a sea of mud and the trainers were tumbling over one another in their frantic efforts to "scratch" their entries.

The overnight entry, it appeared, had not only a superlative mudder," but "carried the wise money." Curtis was "in" and that was all there was to the race.

The New England visitors got their second and last look last night at Kansas City's wondrously beautiful Union Station, and, across the plaza immediately south of the station, the $2,500,000 memorial to the city's war dead, at night a burning flame.

The Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont delegation got away at 8:30 o'clock; the Massachusetts special train at 9 and the Rhode Islanders at 10:15 o'clock. Allow them 36 hours to Boston or Providence and you will know how long the Sunday morning beans and brown bread must be kept warm for them.

ALL PRAISE THE TICKET.

Thousands of delegates, alternates and visitors, many of them women, were in the Union Station at the same hour. Some of the New Englanders who were asked about Hoover and Curtis and the November prospect expressed themselves as follows:

Former Governor Percival P. Baxter, Portland, Me.: "I do not see how the ticket could be improved upon. You have recalled that it was I who brought Mr. Hoover's name before the Republican National Convention of 1920, when he opened with five votes, then went to seven and finally faded away.

"For eight years I have held fast to the hope that eventually we could nominate him, as we have. No one who knows the United States believes it is possible to beat him. Senator Curtis balances the ticket to a nicety. Victory all along the line is just ahead of us."

Mayor Arthur E. Moreau, Manchester, N. H.—"We came out here to work for a Hoover and Moses ticket but so long as Senator Moses appears to be sincerely delighted at the promotion of Senator Curtis the New Hampshire leader's followers have cheerfully fallen into line. No man who places the Granite State in the Democratic or even the doubtful list this year knows how strong the Hoover feeling is up our way and how strong the Moses organization.

"We could have been glad to get behind former Governor Cox, a native son of Manchester, but the opportunity did not come to us and first and last ours was an organization delegation. Senator Curtis will discover that he is no more popular in the corn belt than he is in the White Hills and the valley of the Merrimac."

Publisher Langley, Barre, Vt., "Times"—"The ticket is one which will appeal strongly to the Vermonter and as all the world knows the Vermonter is just naturally a Republican. The outlook could not be better, no matter whom they name at Houston."

Former Governor Channing Cox—"Hoover and Curtis will sweep the country and increased prosperity will be in evidence in the agricultural Central West and in Industrial New England alike."

William F. Whiting of Holyoke—"I should say that the events of these two days must be bad news to those who counted upon a Republican split. Hoover and Curtis will carry the Bay State."

Congressman A. Piatt Andrew—"A winning ticket. Why say more? That is what we came here for."

J. Otis Wardwell, Haverhill—"The satisfaction I expressed yesterday over the unanimous moments of Secretary Hoover has been doubled by the choice of Senator Curtis. Beyond this, I have no other message than: 'Let's get to work, right away.'"

Councillor Henry Parkman, Jr., Boston—"As one who made his primary fight on the issue of Hoover, I am overjoyed by the result accomplished here, and chiefly because I am confident we have done what the Republicans of Massachusetts would have us do. We have made a splendid choice, but we must take nothing for granted. Political success is won only after hard work."

LEADERS SEE VICTORY

Internal Revenue Collector Thomas W. White—"A good ticket. Who can beat it?"

Frank M. Andrew, Methuen—"Our task is half completed. We have nominated the foremost citizen of the world and as his running mate one of the ablest of the nation's statesmen. The next thing is to elect them. We won't do that by cheering for them."

Former Governor John G. Winant, Concord, N. H.—"An ideal ticket."

Clarence W. Barron, Boston News Bureau: "The best of all tickets would have carried the name of Calvin Coolidge. That being impossible, in deference to the wishes of a great President, the convention has done the next best thing. The ticket is first class and I'll make the prophecy now that Hoover and Curtis will win.

John Richardson, Hoover's private campaign manager in Massachusetts: "Kansas City has been a host beyond compare. The convention has been restful. Work should begin next Monday morning. All together."

Members of the Massachusetts party were loathe to discuss the Cox-Fuller collision which eventually ditched both the Bay State "booms"—if either was ever of boom proportions—and the "explainings," if any, will have to wait until they reach home.

The Curtis nomination was arranged in Secretary Mellon's suite in the Muehlebach Hotel, sometime around 3 o'clock in the morning. The organization wanted Curtis, first because he is Curtis, a very regular of "regulars," and second because born in Kansas—a scion of royal Indian blood from the Kaw tribe which once roamed the prairies—he appeared to be the man most likely to appeal to and best equipped to handle the great central west farming element which appeared to be about to question whether the G. O. P. is really the warm friend and stalwart champion of the farmer it was claimed to be.

NEEDS "INDIAN GUIDE."

And then there is another picture. In days of old this city of Kansas City was known as Westport Landing. It was from Westport, you will recall, if you have read Emerson Hough's "The Covered Wagon," or enjoyed that story in its motion-picture form, that the prairie schooners set out on their westward journey across the plains.

Sometimes they met up with "bad" Indians who were disposed of or the whites were slaughtered.

Herbert Hoover is about to set out across the campaign plains in the Republican covered wagon. Word had come to headquarters that some tough Indians of the Tammany tribe are assembling out yonder with evil in their hearts. What Brother Hoover needed, in the opinion of Uncle Andrew Mellon, was not so much a Boston banker or a Boston automobile man as an Indian guide who knows the bad lands and who can be depended upon in a fight where everything goes, including tomahawks.

"BLACK EAGLE" WOULD FLY LINDY'S PATH TO PARIS

Curtiss Field, N. Y., June 16 (AP)—Hubert Julian, 29, negro parachute jumper and flier, who calls himself the "black eagle," announced today he would attempt a non-stop flight to Paris or Rome during the last two weeks of July. Julian attempted a flight to Liberia on July 4, 1924. He used a flying boat named Ethiopia, but could not raise it.

"HUB PET SHOW SUITS US"

ROSLINDALE BIRD GREATLY ADMIRED
Shela Dunn of Roslindale and her pet parrot, "Abou," at the children's pet show.

WILDCAT AMONG PETS SHOWN

Japanese waltzing mice, a Brazilian wild cat, tree toads, snakes, parrots, a chameleon and numerous dogs and cats were entered today in the Children's Pet Show at the Children's Museum in Jamaica Plain.

Members of the museum staff, with Miss Maude Phillips of the Animal Rescue League, judged the pets on the basis of intelligence and unusualness.

First prize was awarded to Edward Russell of Boston for the best essay on "What My Pet Knows." Edward's pet is an Angora cat named "Fluffs." Virginia Coolen of Roxbury received the second prize for an essay on her pet collie, "Scrapper."

CHINA WILL SEEK NEW TREATIES WITH WORLD

Nanking, June 16 (AP)—The Nationalist government issued a declaration of policy today stating that unification of China has been achieved and that the new government aims at gaining the blessings of liberty and international peace on the basis of equality. The statement declares any militaristic form of government will be discarded and that communists will not be tolerated. Finally the Nationalist government proposes to negotiate immediately new treaties on the basis of equal rights.

HERE'S THE SITUATION AS COMMUNIST SEES IT

Moscow, June 16 (AP)—Pravda, official organ of the Communist party, commenting on the nomination of Herbert Hoover by the Republicans, says that its most important aspect was the "failure of the farmer bloc and its final capitulation before the Morgans and Mellons."

The paper says that the result spells the bankruptcy of American party bourgeoisie, leaving in the field but two parties not differing substantially from each other. High officials refrain from commenting.

60 GERMAN PLANES WILL WELCOME OCEAN FLIERS

Bremen, June 16 (AP)—Three score planes from all parts of Germany are concentrating at Bremen to fly out to Bremerhaven on Monday to meet the steamship Columbus and to give an enthusiastic greeting to Capt. Hermann Koehl and his transatlantic companions on their arrival from the United States. Elaborate preparations are being made to give an imposing reception to the aviators, who will fly from Bremen to Berlin in the Bremen's sister plane, Europa.

BOY SCOUTS ASKED TO JOIN HUNT FOR NEFF

New York, June 16 (INS)—Boy Scouts and their leaders in all parts of the United States and particularly New England, have been asked to assist in the hunt for William Wayne Neff, Harvard junior and former Chicago Boy Scout, who disappeared June 4. He was last seen in Stonington, Conn.

Neff was an assistant manager of the Harvard crew and it was assumed in Stonington he was on his way to New London to join the varsity crew.

COOLIDGE IS OFF AGAIN WITH HIS ROD AND REEL

Superior, Wis., June 16 (INS)—A smiling sun at Cedar Island Lodge versus a steady rain in Superior gave President Coolidge a valid excuse today to defer his initial visit to the temporary executive offices and devote himself to a Saturday of fishing.

He was up early completing yesterday's cursory survey of the elaborate Brule river camp, and when word was phoned in that Superior was apparently in for a day of solid rain, the fishing decision was quickly made. The fact that the city and Cedar Island Lodge are separated by the divide he counted on to keep the rain away from his end of the summer establishment.

Col. E. W. Starling, assistant chief of the White House secret service, who has been in the north woods for the past two weeks acclimating himself and making arrangements for the presidential advent, accompanied Mr. Coolidge on the fishing expedition.

Mrs. Coolidge meanwhile continues to rest. Although she is steadily improving, Col. James F. Coupal, the White House physician, deemed it best that she submit to a few more days of complete relaxation. Miss Mildred Beet, navy nurse, is on hand to minister to her wants.

Hoover's Election Means First Quaker President

New York, June 16 (AP)—Herbert Hoover, if elected, will be the Nation's first Quaker President.

The Republican presidential candidate is a member of the Quaker, or Friends' Church, and in Washington attends services with his wife in the Friends' meeting house. Mrs. Hoover prior to her marriage was a member of the Episcopalian church.

The Oregon yearly meeting of the Friends' church yesterday sent Mr. Hoover a telegram of congratulation. At the recent joint annual meeting here of the Orthodox and Hicksite branches of the Friends, members expressed pride that one of their number was apt to become a presidential nominee.

FLOATING ZOO FROM AFRICA ON WAY TO HUB

Keeping Boston apace as the largest animal port in America, the Shipping Board steamship Zarembo is reported today en route here from West Africa with a large collection in charge of J. L. (Pal) Buck, noted animal hunter. The ship will reach here next Wednesday, according to her schedule, and will dock at the Army Base.

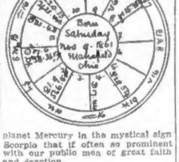
AGE AGAINST REED, AVERS ASTROLOGER

By CATHERINE V. THOMPSON

Catherine Victoria Thompson of 99 Audubon rd., Fenway, begins today a series of horoscopes of Democratic aspirants to presidential honors. Her horoscope reading relative to Governor Alfred Smith of New York, the outstanding Democratic candidate, has already been published.

Senator James A. Reed! Born Saturday, November 9, 1861, in Mansfield, O.

Senator Reed is born with the Sun in conjunction with the intellectual planet Mercury in the mystical sign Scorpio that if often so prominent with our public men of great faith and devotion.



This gives him strong emotions, some jealousy in his nature and, if angry, a high temper, but he possesses indomitable will power and self control with large self-esteem and approbativeness to match, and considerable eloquence. He should make a popular speaker.

He is very skillful in the use of his hands has the patience to take a watch to pieces and put it together again, and has the power of laying on of hands, as royalty has, or of restoring to life persons who have been given up to die.

He would make a good physician nurse or a clever detective.

Senator Reed likes the good things of life, is secretive, proud, inclined to be self-gratifying and should show good taste in his clothes. He can generally see how things are coming out, but is apt to procrastinate.

His age is against him and the work would become too arduous because there is a tendency in his system to affections of the heart or weakness of the back.

Senator Reed is born with the Moon, Mars and Herschel all in friendly aspect to each other from air signs, which makes him inspirational, brave, daring, resolute and courageous.

'Bugs' Explains; Do You Understand?

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

Kansas City, June 16—The convention is ended.

But the malady lingers on.

• • •

Dr. Butler will tour the West delivering his famous lecture: "Every shad has a plank."

Republicans finally squared the farmers by promising to blame everything on the next administration.

The robbing of a Kansas City bank suggested the idea that some Chicago delegate had combined pleasure with business.

Curtis will fill the vacancy that was emptied by Dawes.

• • •

The Republican ticket was chosen in the following order:

President.

The Senate page boys.

Vice-President.

Residents of the Mississippi Valley are fleeing to the hills. A twenty-foot wave of discarded badges is sweeping down the stream.

After watching the delegates squirrels in Kansas City we advise the Houston chairman to discard his gavel and use a nutcracker.

• • •

What the clover-kickers can't figure out is why the Government spends millions to eradicate the Japanese beetle and deliberately encourages Republicans.

After having been removed gently for the second time in four years, Mr. Lowden remarked: "I must be the inflamed tonsils of this party."

Hoover will not talk during the presidential campaign. He is a Socrates without a sock.

The last seen of Dr. Butler he was going back to college.

Curtis is a farmer from the Sunflower State, which makes a bad bouquet if Hoover is a morning glory.

• • •

Dawes is still for the good of the party. He said: "I will give Mr. Hoover the benefit of my experience. I will teach him how to smoke a pipe."

This Is Not at All Funny

The cockney maid in "Paris" at the Wilbur attempts to please a prim guest from Newton Center by replacing a statuette of Aphrodite with a figure of John Alden. "What IS this?" she asks of a Bay Stater. Says he, "A Pilgrim Father." "Humph!" she sniffs, "with the accent on the 'pil'."

STAGE AND SCREEN

New Faces at the Copley

Three old friends are coming to the Copley. Winifred Kingston—in private life Mrs. Dustin Farnum—and Arnold Lucy, well-known player of many dramatic productions, are about to step into the cast of "He Walked In Her Sleep." It is also announced that C. Wordley Hulse is returning.

RISING TEMPERATURE TAKES TOLL OF PLAYHOUSES---LEGITS REDUCED TO TWO

CAME THE DAWN—AND THE MILKMAN. In "The Street of Sin" at the Metropolitan Emil Jannings and Fay Wray sit out on the doorstep and discover what the movie title writers call A Great Love. This touching scene is worth a good heavy cry.

NOT A MOTION PICTURE. Scenes like this are found in a nice mazda sunset. Imagine our surprise to find that this was Arthur Margetson and Irene Bordoni in "Paris," Wilbur.

CATASTROPHE. In "Bringing Up Father" at the Orpheum, Polly Moran, as Maggie, takes to the washtub unexpectedly. Instead of bringing up father she is apparently bent on bringing him down. J. Farrell McDonald and Gertrude Olmsted are the other two Jiggses.

AND IN THIS CORNER Don Lanning and Mildred Costello of the everlasting collegiate musical at the Majestic come face to face with that most vexing problem, the McNary-Haugen Bill, or is it the Boulder Dam project? Gosh! but we'd give a great deal to know.

JANNINGS IN LIMEHOUSE MELODRAMA

By LEO GAFFNEY

Emil Jannings' new film at the Metropolitan, "The Street of Sin," is all right until Director Mauritz Stiller sidetracks it into one of those "soul stirring dramas of elemental emotions."

Along about the third chapter its hero, a bulky bruiser of the London Limehouse slums, falls hard for a Salvation Army lass and "gets religion" with the kind of a thud that is not so sickening as it is dull.

Up to that extremity the character of Basher Bill (Jannings) is a thoroughgoing, orthodox hooligan that looks like a human being, but a suddenly applied coating of whitewash—called Regeneration in the movies—endows him with such long-faced piety that he becomes no longer interesting.

Basher Bill, when he is bashing, is such a treat that you hate to part with him. To see him, a great hulking Bill Sykes of a man, tearing and swearing through the crazy-crooked London streets is far less elevating than to see him pray, but it is vastly more entertaining.

Fay Wray, smugly sweet in the Salvation Army uniform, is the lass who accomplishes the great conversion. Less lovely but far more lifelike is the characterization Olga Baklanova gives of a tawdry, pitiably cheap thing of the streets. In another year this Russian girl of the Moscow Art Theater should be on a par in filmdom with Pola Negri. Nothing should stop her.

"The Street of Sin" is an original screen yarn put together by Josef Von Sternberg and Benjamin Glazer. It has plenty of thrilling moments as well as the dull ones. There are some admirable scenes of the Limehouse district, with its peculiar looking chimney pots and its rippling terra cotta roofs; it is well photographed and al lthat, but the thing that makes you sore is the easy little fluke that makes a good picture barely miss being a great one.

On the Metropolitan stage this week Frank Cambria offers "From Main Street to Broadway," one of his highly colored revues, which contains Calm and Gale and Burdy and Norway as dancers; Arthur Campbell and Ruth Witmer, singers; the pictorial Felicia Sorel Girls, and, of course, the genial bandsman, Rodemich, and his associated syncopators.

RANCH SHOW HITS TOWN TOMORROW

Picturesque figures from the pampas, grizzled frontiersmen, vividly garbed riders from the Far East, elephants, camels, and horses, horses, horses—see 'em all in the famous Miller Brothers' 101 Ranch Wild West And Far East Circus which opens on Monday, ladees and gentulmun, at the Andrew Square grounds.

The show moves in tomorrow, in comparative Sabbath leisure in order that people and animals will be at their best for the street parade Monday forenoon.

Sightseers at the circus grounds Sunday will be interested in the additions, especially in the foreign cavalry contingents.

There are 1100 people and 800 elephants, camels, jungle beasts, horses, buffalo ,longhorn steers, oxen, mules and ponies with the 101 Ranch.

The performances feature many novelties, mostly equestrian, but new spectacles and horse acts, combined with the Far East displays, add greatly to the appeal of the big show. Many rodeo champion cowboys and cowgirls take part in the wild west numbers, and the Indians also have something new for the public this season.

Pops Request Program Is Decided for Thursday

All the ballots from the brown box in Symphony Hall have been counted and the annual request program has been made strictly in accordance with the vote of the Pops audience. The Request Night will take place next Thursday, June 21.

Handel's Largo, as has been the case for many seasons, leads the voting by a large count, thus remaining the most popular as well as the oldest piece in the Pops repertory.

The program will be as follows, here listed according to the number of ballots cast for each number:

Largo .... Handel
Ouverture Solennelle, "1812" ... Tchaikovsky
Stars and Stripes Forever .... Sousa
Ave Maria .... Schubert-Wilhelmj
Waltz, "By the Beautiful Blue Danube" .... Strauss
Symphony in B minor, "Unfinished" .... Schubert
Pomp and Circumstance .... Elgar
"Italia," Rhapsody .... Casella
Suite from "Peer Gynt" .... Grieg
Dance of Sugar Fairy from "Nutcracker" Suite .... Tchaikovsky
Ride of the Valkyries .... Wagner
Overture to "William Tell" .... Rossini

The Story of a Green Dress

By FLORENCE EDNEY
With "Paris" at the Wilbur

That green dress had been unlucky from the day it was first worn, when it caught itself on a nail in an elevated train in New York and a jagged tear was the result.

The next time it ventured forth it was baptized with French dressing, the result of a piece of lettuce being too impatient to remain on a fork while on its short but fatal journey from a salad plate to an eager mouth.

I own the unlucky green dress, and recently, on the occasion of my birthday, once more donned it, recleaned, and sallied forth with a heart full of cheer, and no thought of impending tragedy.

The sun shone (really!) and all the world seemed gay. Well, not all the world, for what was that darting in and out under parked vehicles, pausing bewildered in the middle of the street; then with a piteous wail, seeking shelter again for a moment, only to continue on its way, searching for a friend—a home—some place of safety? It was a cat!

I am fond of animals, so I followed the cat in its furtive course, calling to it so gently that soon it allowed itself to be approached, and finally to be gathered up, dusty and tremulous, but soothed by the arms and upon the bosom of—the green dress.

Thirsty, of course—a delicatessen near—only a block away. A bottle of milk — the delicatessen is reached. From the throat of the thirsty vagrant there issues a long wail.

More wails, and then an answering "meow" from behind the counter, materializing a moment later in the well fed form of a tortoise shell cat with eyes distended in angry inquiry—and with what in mind?

No need to wonder for long. The air is rent with challenging howls, the green dress is ripped by claws attached to a pair of back legs, eager like the front ones, straining malevolently downwards for the fray. The confused mass rolls over and over, and finally disappears out of the delicatessen door into—Silence.

At the hotel where I am staying there is a very nice maid who never comes rattling at the door in the early morning with her pass key. It think the green dress will be very becoming to her.

BOWDOIN BILL

Prince Ali, the Hindu mystic, heads the bill at the Bowdoin Square Theater next week. On the screen, the feature picture is D. W. Griffith's "Drums of Love." Phyllis Haver in "Chicago" is another film attraction.

At the Copley

WINIFRED KINGSTON joins Mr. Clive and company on Monday in the current farce, "He Walked in Her Sleep."

"ROULETTE" IN THE FILMS

The derivation of the title of the Fannie Hurst story "Roulette," upon which Richard Barthelmess' picture, "The Wheel of Chance," coming to the Olympia and Scollay on Monday, was based, is unique.

Richard Barthelmess

In this story of Russia and New York, the star plays a dual role—two brothers, one of whom is red-headed, the other dark. Symbolically, the title indicates the part Luck and Fate play in human affairs and as in the famous game of chance, the red or black must either win or lose.

Fannie Hurst wrote the original story from which this Alfred Santell Production is adapted. It is said to be one of the most dramatic vehicles in which Barthelmess has ever appeared.

Tuneless Actors Portray Songbirds In Film

Glenn Tryon can't play a piano and Laura La Plante's singing voice is a rather uncertain one.

Glenn Tryon

Yet, in "Thanks for the Buggy Ride," new film at the Keith-Albee Boston, the story is built around the ability of Tryon to rattle off jazz tunes, and Miss La Plante to sing them.

This is a tribute to their acting ability, for both give the impression of being accomplished artists in the close-ups.

Judging from Miss La Plante's lip and throat movements one cannot tell that the note is slightly flat. Tryon's finger movement is equally good, and his playing is proportionately bad.

While these scenes are funny on the screen they were even funnier on the set when the music and voice could be heard. A horrible disharmony, purposely lost on the screen, gives the impression of professional singing with piano, accompaniment.

"PLEASED TO MEET YOU"

BILLIE MILLER and her polite friend always stand when being presented. You may make their acquaintance on Monday at Andrew Square when the Miller 101 Ranch circus rides into town.

CHARACTERS IN REVERSE FOR FILM

Choosing characters, not to duplicate the cartoon people of the comic page, but rather to represent people who, if caricatured, would result in those caricatures—this is the rather complicated manner in which Jiggs, Maggie, Mrs. Dinty Moore, Dinty and the rest of the fanciful people of "Bringing Up Father" were chosen for the screen.

Marie Dressler

In other words, the director worked backward — just the opposite of the work of the cartoonist, in assembling the characters for the new production which comes Monday to the Orpheum.

"A cartoonist," says Jack Conway, who directed, "takes a certain person and draws an exaggerated portrait of him for a caricature—usually accenting one particular feature or set of features. Hence caricatures are really just impressions of salient points in human faces—and not of themselves really human.

"For instance, it would be impossible to find exact counterparts for Jiggs or Maggie as seen in the cartoons; they would not be human. They violate all the laws of anatomy. So, assuming that they are caricatures, we worked backward to see what sort of face, if exaggerated and caricatured, ,would result in these pictures. In other words, just as the cartoonist takes normal faces and exaggerates them into caricatures, we took caricatures and normalized them back into human faces."

By this method J. Farrell MacDonald was chosen for the role of Jiggs and Polly Moran for Maggie in the new picture, and Marie Dressler was given the role of Mrs. Dinty Moore, with Jules Cowles as Dinty.

Vaudeville Changes

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—Ethel Parker and Fred Babb and their Philippine Sextette in the skit, "Bits of Personalities"; Morris and Shaw, comedians, in "The Mosquito Trust"; George Yeoman and "Lizzie" in "Information"; Synthia and Clare in "Melodies"; other turns and films.

VOICE OF NORUMBEGA NOW OPEN

Courteous But Also Curt

John Luce, saying a word for "Good News," tells this one: Mrs. Pat Campbell, rehearsing "The Foolish Virgin" for the late Charles Frohman, haughtily protests, "But, Mr. Frohman, I am an artiste!" "That's all right, madame, said C. F. quietly, "I'll keep your secret"—and out he walks!

"Big Brother" Bob Emory will emerge from the radio stations and literally take the air next week as the featured attraction at Norumbega Park's out-in-the-ozone theater. Bob and his "Joy-Spreaders" will salute the atmosphere and all comers straight through the week at this resort.

SIGHING ROMANCE VIES WITH SPIRITED FARCE IN WEEK'S CARGO OF FILMS

THE FIRST MATE gazes fondly on his first mate, but with a seaman's versatility he ought to have further ambitions. Ramon Novarro and Joan Crawford are the seagoing principals in "Across to Singapore," State.

"SIR, HOW DARE YOU!" exclaims Laura La Plante, just as if she meant it, "do you think that I can be beguiled by soft blandishment, because I'm from Antigonish?" Richard Tucker is the city slicker and film is "Thanks for the Buggy Ride," K.-A. Boston.

IT SEEMS that in "Wheels of Chance," at the Washington and Scollay, Richard Barthelmess gets married and brings the girl home to his Ma. For the rest of this tale refer to any of the famous mother-in-law jokes so justly celebrated in song and story—and vaudeville.

GETTING THAT WAY and, as they say, how! This expression of manly eccentricity occurs at a moment's notice in something called "Slightly Used," at the Modern and Beacon. Ain't Walter Pidgeon and May McAvoy the ones, though!

MARIE WANTS TO PRODUCE

Marie Callahan

Marie Callahan, petite principal in "Good News," at the Majestic, declares that her one ambition is to produce her own musical comedy.

"It certainly would be great to own a musical comedy," said cute Marie, "and further your own ideas as to what should be done with this number and what should be cut from that one. You know, unless you are a star with your name in lights, and sometimes not even then, you have nothing to say about the production in which you are appearing. You take the lines allotted you, the song numbers and the dances and do them as the stage director or the dance director wants you to, and any suggestions you might offer would be passed by. But, some day I'm going to produce a musical comedy and in that show will be my idea of what a dance number should be.

"Today there is too much routine in the theater, or at least in the producing end of it. Surely, two heads are better than one, so why not have those who are actually doing their respective numbers give his or her opinion of them?

"Personally I think a world of 'good stuff' (to use show parlance) is lost by not having the performers make suggestions. The actors and actresses are out there in front at every performance, and they can 'feel' the audiences much better than anybody back stage. Yes, if I ever do produce my own show, I will eliminate all these faults."

Films Reorganize for "Talkies"

By LOUELLA PARSONS

NEW YORK, June 16—Movies in the East are looking up. Within three months the studios will all be open, and sound pictures will be in production. The Cosmopolitan Studios, where once Marion Davies made "When Knighthood Was in Flower," "Little Old New York" and many other films, is being installed with sound devices.

E. H. Hattrick, general manager of International Newsreel and business manager for the Hearst Motion Picture interests, is busy reconstructing this studio for a large producing company. That means, of course, additional pictures will be made here in New York.

The huge Paramount Studios, which have been silent so long, are about to open their doors and windows and be peopled with motion picture folk again. "Burlesque" goes into production there soon and other plays. Adolph Zukor believes the entire motion picture business will be adjusted to meet this condition.

I VISITED Zukor at his office. He is knocking off work early these days and going home to the country. I never expected to hear a lecture from him on how to stay young, but he gave me one. He says he goes to bed early and is up at 7 o'clock every morning. He has the right idea. He is going to enjoy his wealth and his family while he can and not lose them by working himself to death.

Yet, I venture to say if a big business deal came up we would find the little general in the thick of the battle. He is not the kind of man to sit by and let someone else do his work. As it is, his lieutenants come to him for final instructions. No man can become the head of a big business and shirk responsibility, especially a man who has Adolph Zukor's brains and achievements.

THE shiny bobbed head of Louise Brooks will be a part of "The Canary Murder Case." Louise, who only recently obtained her freedom from Eddie Sutherland, will play opposite William Powell in this mystery murder tale. It is a good part for her and will give her opportunity to prove her ability.

LAUNCH YEAST KING'S YACHT AT NEPONSET

With the sparkle of real pre-war champagne glistening on her bow, the $625,000 yacht Camergo, built for Julius Fleischmann, Cincinnati yeast king, slid down the ways at Lawley's boat yard, Neponset, today.

Mrs. Fleischmann, surrounded by society of Cincinnati, Newport and Boston, sponsored the launching with the sparkling beverage as the all-steel craft settled in open water to await completion.

In addition to Fleischmann, his wife and mother, a large party of yachtsmen made the trip from the western city. Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Herrick, Dr. and Mrs. Henry D. Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Morse and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Dain of Boston, Miss Marion Epply of Newport, Albert Y. Gowen of Concord and Charles F. Adams, commodore of the Eastern Yacht Club, Marblehead, were present.

The new craft, a floating hotel, is the first clipper stem, straight Diesel ship to be built in the country. She stands 325 feet in length over all, is of 32-foot beam and draws 14 feet of water. Two 800-horsepower motors are capable of developing 14 knots an hour and will cover 20,000 nautical miles without refueling.

After fittings are installed the yeast magnate will tour the New England coast with another tour to the Far East planned in the fall.

Capt. Charles E. Small of Boston is named commander of the 33 crew personnel.

MARY PICKFORD GOWNS SEIZED FOR U. S. DUTY

New York, June 16 (AP)—Customs officials ordered held for further examination 12 trunks full of gowns and other clothing belonging to Mary Pickford, screen star, who arrived with her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, today board the Italian liner Roma.

The famous pair landed 32 pieces of baggage and had to wait on the pier more than an hour while agents made a preliminary examination.

Miss Pickford said the low figures in her declaration were due to the fact that she had received special prices from Italian merchants. The Customs officials, however, ruled that if these prices were greatly lower than the same articles would have cost in the United States, the actress will be called upon to pay more duty.

Twelve wardrobe trunks, containing the goods in question, were hauled from the pier to the appraisers stores, where it is expected three days will be required to check the prices.

Fairbanks and his wife will remain in New York until the end of next week, when they will leave for Hollywood.

Miss Pickford, in a declaration written in Italian, estimated the value of her importations between $6000 and $7000, custom officials said. Duty on the articles included in the baggage ranges from 30 to 80 per cent of their value.

Tax Share $75,000 Lower

Lowell, June 16—Lowell's share of the county tax this year is $75,502 lower than in 1927.

Beware the Holiday, Advice to Autoists

By Frank A Goodwin

Highway Safety Editor, Boston Evening American, and Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles for Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Motorists, beware of the holidays.

There are from 10 to 15 persons now alive in Massachusetts who will be dead by next Monday night as the result of auto accidents.

Frank A. Goodwin

Every year over a holiday and especially when it comes at the week-end as the 17th of June this this year, giving virtually a three-day respite, auto accidents show a great increase.

When the holiday spirit prevails, care is more or less thrown to the winds, with inevitable toll.

We always have more drunken drivers on holidays and the night before, and of course, drunken drivers mean deaths.

It is to be hoped that every operator of a car who takes a drink tomorrow or the next day will keep away from the wheel.

If you happen to be in a party and partake of drink get someone else to drive your car.

A cause of accidents holiday nights is due to many operators thinking they are the only ones on the road. They flash past intersection after intersection at from 40 to 60 miles an hour.

They do not stop to think that there are 700,000 cars on the highways of Massachusetts, to say nothing of a heavy holiday influx of visiting automobiles and that many are likely to be out as late and driving just as recklessly.

There is another thought I wish to drive home to operators. In congested areas where hundreds of pedestrians are in the streets, there is necessity for greater care on the part of drivers, because the holiday crowds are naturally imbued with the holiday spirit and, too often with HOLIDAY SPIRITS, which make them more careless and thoughtless.

The children on holidays are particularly thoughtless and careless because of various distractions. It is apparent, therefore, that if both the pedestrians and operators catch too much of this holiday spirit there is a fine setting for serious accidents.

Not only should operators be lectured and warned but a few words of caution should be given to pedestrians. Mothers also should remember that on holidays their children are far more likely to play in the streets than on other days and they should also know that some drivers are more likely to be drunk or reckless on such days.

Therefore a few extra Don'ts are in order.

To the drivers I would say:

DON'T DRIVE AFTER DRINKING.

DON'T SPEED THROUGH CONGESTED AREAS.

DON'T SPEED LATE AT NIGHT, THINKING YOU ARE THE ONLY ONE ON THE ROAD.

DON'T TAKE CHANCES.

To the pedestrians—

DON'T RELAX YOUR WATCHFULNESS.

DON'T TRUST TOO MUCH TO THE GOOD JUDGMENT OF THE DRIVER.

DON'T TAKE CHANCES.

ELKS' FLAG DAY ON COMMON

A ringing tribute to the Flag by Congressman Loring M. Black of New York featured the Flag Day exercises held at the Parkman Bandstand today by Boston Lodge of Elks.

The invocation was read by the Rev. George P. O'Conor; addresses were delivered by John C. Hull, Speaker of the House; Maj.-Gen. Preston Brown, Rear-Admiral Philip H. Andrews and Mayor Nichols.

The ceremony closed with benediction by Rabbi Irving Miller of Chelsea, and the rendition of the "Star Spangled Banner" by Miss Dora Marie Smith, accompanied by the Elks Band.

30 KILLED IN MOSCOW RIOT OF 100,000 JOBLESS

Warsaw, June 16 (INS)—One hundred thousand unemployed workers staging a demonstration in Moscow clashed with troops and 30 persons were killed and 127 wounded, dispatches from the Soviet capital said today. In the melee, many were trampled by the horses of the soldiers. Twelve of those killed were soldiers.

INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS ON WORLD LABOR AGENDA

Geneva, Switzerland, June 16 (AP)—The International Labor Conference adjourned today after unanimously voting to put the question of industrial accidents on the agenda of the 1929 conference. In the meanwhile the governments will be asked to express their views as to how the problem can best be handled.

LEWISOHN'S EX-WIFE WEDS

New York, June 16 (AP)—The marriage Thursday of Mrs. Walter Lewisohn, known in opera circles as Mme. Selma, and H. Bartow Farr, a lawyer, was disclosed today.

Walter Lewisohn, the bride's first husband, was divorced three months ago and is now in Blythewood Sanitarium, Greenwich, Ct.

The names of Mr. and Mrs. Lewisohn received wide notice after the slaying of Joseph Browne Elwell, bridge expert. They were hosts at a party Elwell attended on the night of the killing.

Mrs. Farr is a sister of Viola Kraus, once reported engaged to Elwell.

BILLION COLLECTED IN AUTO TAX BY GOVERNMENT

Washington, June 16 (INS)—More than $1,000,000,000 was collected by the government from the automobile excise tax, inaugurated October 4, 1917, and repealed May 29, 1928, the American Motorists' Association announced today. Repeal of the tax, assessed only on new cars purchased, means a saving of approximately $70,000,000 annually.

Shows Canada Liquor Control Act Dosen't Boom Breweries

Toronto, Ont., June 16 (AP)—A denial that the Ontario Liquor Control Act has been responsible for increase in the number of breweries in the province has been made by Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the liquor control board.

The charges were made in resolutions adopted at the church conference, recently at Kingston.

Sir Henry said the capacity of the Ontario breweries to be 273,586 gallons a day, while the total sales for the entire month of May through the liquor board were under 800,000 gallons.

"Any justification for the multiplication of breweries," he said, "cannot, therefore, be based upon the purchases under the Liquor Control Act."

WINIFRED BLACK DISCOVERS PIONEERS STILL EXIST

Following is the third installment of Winifred Black's series, "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

By WINIFRED BLACK

(Copyright, 1928, by Examiner Printing Company. Distributed by King Features Syndicate)

San Francisco, June 16—Pepper trees, casting a lacy shadow on the ground.

Eucalyptus—the rose variety—what a tree!

Tall and straight as a lance with silver scimitars for leaves and garlanded with great, glorious sprays of rose-colored flowers that fairly drench the air with perfume.

Hedges of heliotrope, three feet broad, hedges of calla lilies, hedges of scarlet geraniums, hedges of aromatic lantana—pink and sulphur color, and a strange, dull blue.

Trees of roses—houses covered with gagenta bougainvillea and with magenta bougainvillea and yellow cloth of gold rose that was brought from Spain 100 years ago.

Orange orchards, grapefruit orchards, lemon orchards, what is there in this world as sweet as the smell of an orange tree in bloom and in fruit at the same incredible moment? Fuchsias, purple and white, and pink and white, draping a humble little house by the side of the road.

I wonder who lives there—let's stop and ask for a drink of water and see.

SIGHTLY FUCHSIAS

Why! It's Grandmother Smith herself, little and frail and blue eyes and with a mass of silver hair. "Why, sure we can have water and all we want and it is good water, too, we'll find when we taste it."

The muchsias? Yes, they're slightly aren't they? Grandmother Smith remembers when her mother had a pot of them in the parlor back east in Iowa. She often wishes that her mother could come back and see these covering the house. She would hardly believe her eyes.

Would she?

Yes, she is living all alone now Grandmother Smith. You see her grandson, young John, was hurt in the big war and Uncle Sam gave him a farm and enough money to stock it, and John Smith, Jr., is out on the farm, trying to make things go. When he gets his well dug and his little house on it, Grandma is going out to visit him.

From John's letter Grandma's a little afraid that he is a little disappointed in his farm—it seems to be pretty dry, and there are no trees on it—not a tree, just cactus and sagebrush. Grandma thinks there must be some mistake about it.

John was a real hero in the war. You ought to see the medals he brought home. Oh! they were the prettiest things—and a couple of his buddies went up to the same place and took up the land and they act real mad about it. They say nobody can make a living there but a rattlesnake or a prairie dog.

NOT FOR SALE

Grandma Smith hates to hear them talk so; it isn't very nice to speak against the Government like that. Sometimes she thinks she will just sit down and write herself to the President about it. She is sure if he knew he would see to it right away.

No, it's not for sale, the little house by the side of the road, but, of course, if she could get a good price for it, maybe. What a pair of brave blue eyes you have, Grandma Smith—American to the bone, you and your little clean print dress and your old-fashioned shoes and the gallant courage of that tired heart of yours.

I am not worried about grandson. He may have to give up the idea of making anything on that ranch his grateful Government was kind enough to give him in recognition of his loyal gallantry—but he will make it somewhere, somehow.

No man with a grandmother like that will be a failure, not even if he was wounded and shell-shocked and will carry the misery of his lameness along with him to the grave.

Come along, Finnegan. Time to get out on the road. What a lot of queer signs, to be sure.

"Happy's Inn."

"Restful Camp."

"Let 'Er Go Cottages."

"Why Bring That Up Camp."

"The Cream Can." That's a little shop built in the shape of a bottle of milk. They sell ice cream and soda there—doing a rushing business, too, to judge by the cars parked outside.

A RAINBOW VILLAGE

Here's a funny little village. For goodness sake, the houses are painted all the colors of the rainbow. Look at the flags waving, hundreds of little fellows, red, white and blue, with the stripes and stars all there, even if they are in minature.

"Gas—Yes."

"Water—Yes.'

"School—Yes." It's a real estate addition all a-growing and a-glowing. Come back next year and there will be five or six hundred little bungalows and six or seven ice cream parlors and Chili parlors and two or three barber shops and a "beauty shoppe" or so. I do wish they would leave out that extra "pe."

Hello—here's a restaurant—it calls itself a barbecue, but it's a restaurant just the same. What's that sign say? "Freida is back."

Well, Well, Freida, isn't that good news? You must be popular to be worth a sign like that. What is it you do so well—waffles or old-fashioned strawberry shortcake? Save the mark, dry cake with two or three desecrated berries and a whiff of lather that you call whipped cream.

Where did you go, Freida, and

"JAILED JAILER'S" WIDOW IN RACE AGAIN FOR JAILER

Whitesburg, Ky., June 16 (AP)—Mrs. Mattie Whittaker, widow of the "jailed jailer" of Letcher County in the Kentucky mountains, has announced her candidacy for jailer to succeed herself. Her late husband, Fess Whittaker, while jailer, was sentenced to several terms in his own jail for drinking and two years ago he was sentenced to six months for attacking county officers. While incarcerated he ran for county judge and won easily. He was killed in an automobile accident. Her platform again is, "If Letcher countyans must go to jail, they need a Whittaker to care for them."

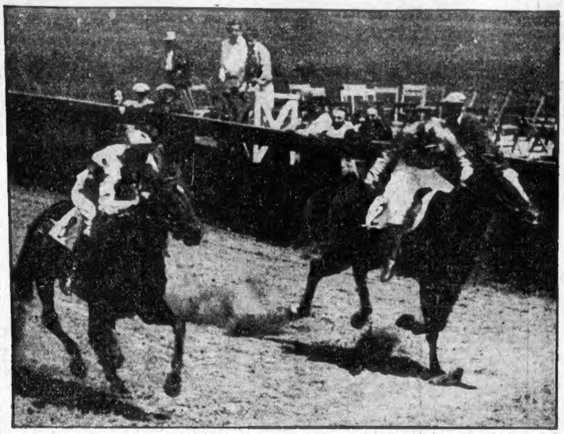
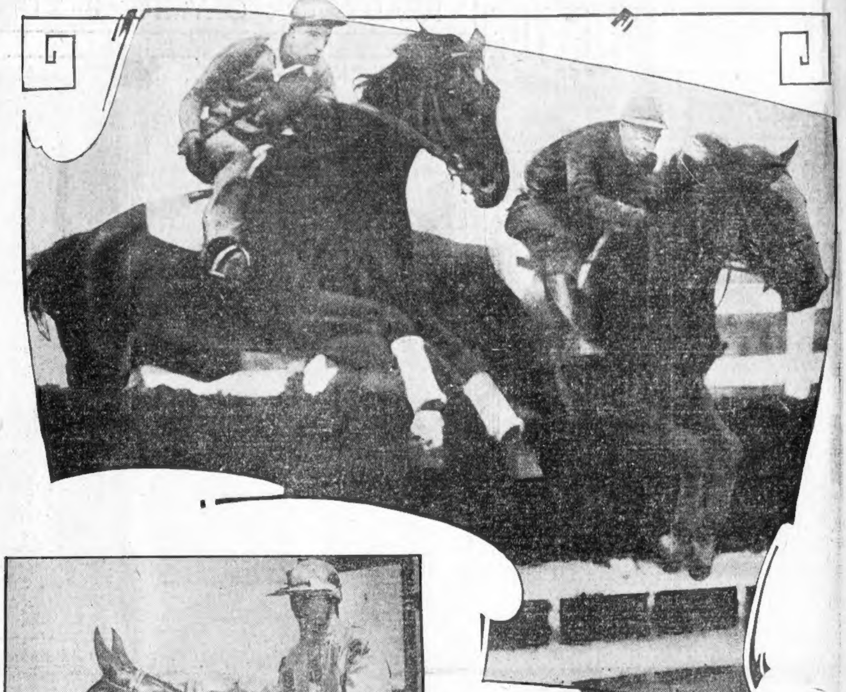
Sport of Kings Draws Throng to Brookline



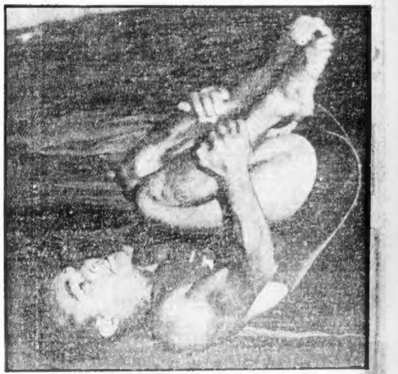
A HOT FINISH was seen in the first ladies' race at the annual meeting of the Eastern Horse Club at Clyde Park this afternoon. Picture shows Dorothy Neyhart beating out Lorraine Liggett for first place as the thoroughbreds raced for the tape nip and tuck. More than half a million dollars is represented in the horses gathered at the park for this show.



OVER THE TOP. Madrigal, left, and Canterberry, two more of the jumpers who will perform at the Country Club this p. m., are shown clearing the barrier. Today's card includes three steeplechase events, which insures plenty of action for the customers.

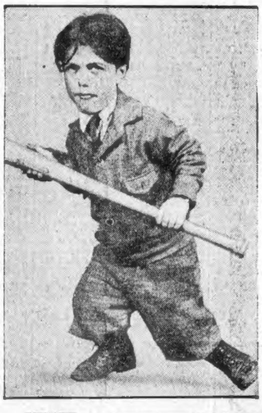
KING IS KING of high jumpers. Bob King of Stanford University is shown winning the high jump at the National intercollegiate meet in Chicago. He also won the I. C. 4-A title. (I.N.R.)

DOROTHY NEYHART on May Morn. It was with this mount that the Bay State girl won the first ladies' race given as a special feature of the Eastern Horse Club show. (All staff (photos.)



UPSIDE DOWN. Not the picture, but the merman, who is Pete Des Jardines, shown doing a jacknife dive in the final trials for the U. S. Olympic team. He won easily. (I.N.R.)

HUB OLYMPIC PROSPECT. Katherine Mearls of South Boston is one of the seven New England girls named to compete in the final Olympic tryouts for members of the fair sex at Newark, N. J., July 4. The Peninsula girl is an all-round performer.



MIDGET of Midgets. Paul Albert, 14-year-old shortstop, who is the smallest player on the Roxbury Midget nine, but by no means the leas valuable. He swings a wicked stick.

ARMS AND LEGS play an important part in the athletic career of Frank Wykoff, Glendale (Cal.) high school sprinter, who aims to stride his way to Amsterdam as a member of the U. S. Olympic team. Much of Wykoff's speed is due to the long stride he takes and to his arms, which seem to be ever pulling him forward. (International Newsreel photo.)

Eastern Horse Club Race Meeting Opens Today

SIX EVENTS ON CLYDE PARK PROGRAM

Fair weather made the opening of the Eastern Horse Club's annual race meeting at the Country Club, Brookline, this afternoon, a record-breaker in every respect.

The fans, and these include the average man in the street as well as the society leader, anxious to experience the thrills that occur when the bagtails leap into action, and turned out as never before.

More than half a million dollars is represented in the thoroughbreds gathered at The Country Club and nearby stables, primed and rarin' to go in the nine miles of steeplechasing, and one and thirteen-sixteenths miles of flat racing which face them this afternoon.

Horses from as far west at Detroit, and a shipment of Canadian racers, are on hand to vie with the best the East can produce in the $23,000 events, of which $7250 will be up today.

Judging the class of horses by the names of their famous owners, which is generally the accepted standard, this year's meeting is much superior to the two preceding it, which marked the revival of racing in New England after a lapse of ten years.

GREENTREE ENTRY

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, who owns the famous Greentree stable will be making her first entry here since the days before the war when her Cherry Malotte won the Grand Annual. Thomas Hitchcock, father of the polo internationalist, has nominated Oarsman to bring the colors back on a track which knew them as winners back in the nineties.

Danoplo and Rabel, the latter one of the money winners in almost every start at Belmont and Aqueduct in the last few weeks, from the Jefferson Livingston stable of New York and Heisdelite, owned by Allen Case, a director of the Ontario Jockey Club add real color to the entry list.

Maryland will be well represented by Wilson K. Lovering of Baltimore, who has the Royal Duck back for a defense of the National Hunt Cup; Mr. J. Fred Adams of Catonsville is sending Gracie, winner of the Billy Barton steeplechase at Pimlico and a horse worthy of winning a race named after the American thoroughbred which made such a great showing in the English Grand National in March and John Bosley, Jr., of Monkton with his fine string.

Both Man o' War colts, Walter J. Salman's Gunboat and Frank Grossman's Volunteer, will be seen here for the first time. Some of the other prominent visitors include Mr. and Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark and John McEntee Bowman of New York, Mr. and Mrs. C. V. B. Cushman of Pomfret Centre, Ct., F. M. Alger of Detroit, Richard Whitney of New Jersey and the Dunwalke Farm and the Sewickley Stable of Pennsylvania.

MASSACHUSETTS' HOPES

Massachusetts places its hopes on the stables of John R. Macomber, A. F. Goodwin, Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., Flying Horse Farm, Bayard Warren, Mrs. H. W. Cristy, Frank B. Hopewell, Richardson White, Mrs. William Dexter, Mrs. Nathaniel Emmons, Weston W. Adams, Harry W. Smith and the Misses Ruth and Dorothy Neyhart.

The real features of today's meeting are the 28th running of the Challenge Cup, a two and one-half mile steeplechase for hunters, purse $1200, and the ninth running of the Chamblet Memorial, a two-mile steeplechase for four-year-olds and upward, purse $2000. It would occasion no surprise, however, if the Norfolk Hunt Club claiming a steeplechase, at two miles, which is the last race on the program, steals the honors from a spectacular standpoint.

ROCKINGHAM RACE DRAWS DURAY

Leon Duray, creator of a new world record for all tracks other than a straightaway, has forwarded his entry to the Rockingham Speedway race officials, making a trio of champions for the annual 200-mile classic at the Salem, N. H., track, July 4.

Duray, testing a car at the Packard proving grounds, Detroit, clipped off miles at the rate of 148.1 per hour, a speed never before attained except on special straightaway courses.

With the known speed of the Rockingham enclosure, it is almost an assured fact that the winner of this race will attain a mark never before approached.

Such drivers as Duray, Meyer and Keech are entered, so there is little doubt that New England race fans will see miles ripped off at a faster clip than ever before.

GIRLS RACE AT CHELSEA TODAY

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

The seven girl athletes selected by the women's committee of the New England A. A. A. U. to compete in the Women's Olympic tryouts at Newark, N. J. will be seen in action this afternoon at Carter Field, Chelsea.

These girls, Rena MacDonald, Mildred Wiley, Katherine Mearls of the Boston Swimming Association and record holders in numerous events, along with Mabel Morrissey, Florence MacDonald, Pansy Madeira and Olive Hasenfus are to compete in the Chelsea Park department meet which starts at 2:30 o'clock.

A group of athletes from Pennsylvania will also compete.

Of local champions, Katherine Mearls is entered in the javelin throw and the two dash events. The premier girl athlete of this section is national running broad jump champion, record holder in the dash and always looks well in any of the events that she enters.

Mildred Wiley of Wollaston is to compete for the Mayor Lawrence Quigley trophy, presented by the Chelsea mayor for the high jump prize. Miss Wiley holds the New England outdoor and indoor titles and is National Indoor champion and American record holder.

Margaret Proctor of the Lunenburg A. C. will defend her title in the javelin throw and competing against her in this event will be Katherine Mearls, Sylvia Broman of the Girls' A. C. of Brockton, and other stars.

Anna Pocracker of Brockton, Mae Ritchie of Boston Swimming Association, and Frances Allen of the Lunenburg A. C. will compete in the New England championship discus throw.

In this event, as in the shotput, Rena MacDonald of the Boston Swimming Association will be defending champion.

In the shotput are entered Mae Magill of the B. S. A., Thelma Fields of the Women's Swimming Association of Brookline, and Edith Proctor, Lunenburg. Another interesting title event will be the baseball throw, in which Miss Alice Morris of South Boston will defend her title.

Competition should be very keen in this last event with 16 girls entered. Among the leading entries are Mary Scully of the W. S. A. of Brookline, Margaret Johnson, B. S. S., Muriel Case, Girls' A. C. of Brockton, and Mary Brown of the Medford Girls' Club.

The quartet of girls selected to represent New England in the relay at Newark in the Olympic tryouts on July 4 will compete in their specialty. The others to enter teams are the Pennsylvania Railroad A. A., Women's Swimming Association of Brookline and a team of Brockton girls.

ROBERTI BOUT FOR ARGONNE WINNER

Larry Gaines of Toronto, Canadian heavyweight champion, who impressed Hub fans with his tremendous punching ability when he sent Tom Kirby to the mat three times in his only appearance in a local ring, is back in this city prepared to take the measure of Jack Gagnon, New Bedford giant, in the feature 10-round bout at Braves Field next Monday night under the direction of the Argonne A. A.

Gaines rushed to Jim Toland's gymnasium immediately upon his arrival here, so anxious is he to defeat Gagnon, and he put in a busy training session swapping wallops with Marvin Schector and Shadow Bowden.

The Canadian heavyweight king, who came so near to knocking out Kirby, apparently made an immediate hit with local fans, for he accomplished a feat that neither Tommy Loughran nor Young Stribling could equal when they met Kirby.

Now Gaines is looking forward to a knockout victory over Gagnon, in spite of the fact that the New Bedford boy stepped 10 hard rounds with Johnny Risko and Roberto Roberti without being in trouble. In fact, Gagnon has met all the topnotchers without hearing the fatal "ten," and he has little fear of the punches of the Canadian heavyweight.

While Promoter Eddie Mack promised the winner of Monday night's fight a chance to meet "Dynamite Jim" Maloney, it was learned that the South Boston heavyweight will not be able to don the gloves again until the middle of July at least.

Ever since the bout with Jack De Mave Maloney has been complaining of a sore hand, and yesterday it was x-rayed by Dr. Charles E. Mackey of South Boston, and while no bones are broken, the hand is bruised and swollen to twice its normal size, and the physician advised Maloney to take it easy for a couple of weeks.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

"HOW would you like to be Mayor Thomas J. Corbett of Lowell?" asked Mr. Boston today.

"I'd take the job," piped up Freddy Lane.

"Me, too," said George Grimm.

"You birds apparently figure you are master diplomats," went on Mr. Boston. "I am wondering how Mayor Corbett will act as he watches Al Mello and Billy Murphy, a couple of Lowell boys, battle for the New England welterweight championship at an Arena A. C. show at Fenway Park on next Monday night."

"He'll root his head off for both kids," said the practical Mister Lane, who was once a candidate for the City Council in Revere. "He'll congratulate the winner and also mitt the loser."

"You're probably right," resumed Mr. Boston. "Tom Corbett is a red hot boxing fan and as fine a sportsman as there is anywhere. He has always been at the ringside when either Mello or Murphy has been in action. He is very friendly with both boys, and I think if he had his way next Thursday night's bout would end in a draw. As draws are not allowed in Massachusetts, Mayor Tom is probably hoping that it is a sensational bout which will give enough glory for both Mello and Murphy.

"I understand that the Merrimac Valley will be like a deserted village on next Thursday night. Everybody is coming to Boston to witness the most important welterweight battle staged in New England since Mello knocked out Eddie Shevlin.

"Wise men in the boxing racket like Alex MacLean are picking Murphy to win. They figure that as Billy was able to lick Honeyboy Finnegan, Johnny Indrisano, Meyer Cohen and Jack Zivic, he should be able to cut Mello down.

"The Mello-Murphy affair looks like SOME fight. I'll be there along with Mayor Corbett and the rest of the fight fans."

MEMBERS of Local 1, Boxers' Union, have taken exceptions to former State Senator James H. Brennan's combative qualities. During a recent trial in the Probate Court in Middlesex County, a witness got riled up by Attorney Brennan's fiery cross-examination and threatened to take a punch at the Charlestown man. The former lawmaker didn't try to run away from the fight and the witness calmed down.

Local 1, Boxers' Union, with headquarters at Kelley & Hayes, has written the former senator as follows:

"Hon. James H. Brennan:

"Sir—"We, the undersigned, Boston boxers training at Kelley & Hayes' Gym, Bowdoin sq., read in the newspapers of your going into our game. Now, sir, we know you are making plenty of jack in the law game, and why ain't you satisfied? Keep out of our game.

"Come down to Kelley & Hayes' Gym if you want fight and we will try to accommodate you.

"You may be a knockout at law, but you must show us in this game. Sincerely yours (Signed),

"Jack Sharkey, Jim Maloney, Sammy Fuller, Tom Kirby, Honeyboy Finnegan, Abe Goldstein, Dark Cloud Bradley and 50 other box makers."

"YOU don't remember me?" said a stylishly-dressed, easy-spoken young man who stepped up to Mr. Boston's desk.

"I'm Theodore Kuzenetz of Roxbury," went on the stranger.

This didn't seem to mean a thing to Mr. Boston.

"You probably remember me better as Young Teddy, a featherweight boxer of 17 or 18 years ago," said the visitor.

"Put it there, Teddy," said Mr. Boston, as he extended his mitt. "I'll confess I was in a fog for a time. Notice you haven't got any marks from the racket."

"I was fairly clever," said the oldtimer. "Do I look as though I'm 38 years old? I used to fight for Eddie Mack, remember?"

Teddy then asked his pal to step forward. He was none other than Wildman Gould, formerly of Brockton.

"I've been working on the docks for three years and am as hard as nails," said the Wildman. "I want to fight some more. I have cut out the clown stuff and am now a regular tough fighter. I want to knock out a few birds and then grab myself a jackpot of dough. Tell the boys I'm training and rarin' to go. Teddy here is my manager. I hope the promoters keep him busy with offers."

"A busy fighting machine was this Wildman Gould," said Mr. Boston. "I'll never forget the day the late Frank Tillo nailed Gould on the button with a right-hand sock at the old Commonwealth Club. The Wildman always gave the boys action dividends for their dough."

Babe Needs 3 Dozen Homers To Tie Record

New York, June 16 (AP)—Babe Ruth needs only a mere three dozen more home runs to tie his record of 60, established last year.

The Babe made it two dozen for 1928 when he smashed No. 24 into the stands off Crowder at St. Louis. That drive, with Durocher on base, failed to save the Yankees from their eleventh beating of the year, but it did put Ruth seven games and seven days ahead of his schedule last year.

HANS STEINKE COMES HERE

Hans Steinke, recognized in New York State as the heavyweight champion of the world, will make his Hub debut on Wednesday evening at Mechanics Building. The husky German will tackle Dan Koloff, the Bulgarian bone crusher, in the feature bout.

The Boston Wrestling Club is staging this big match, which promises to draw a large audience. Steinke has met and defeated the best big men in the game. His long list of victories has made him a marked man.

In selecting Dan Koloff as an opponent, Matchmaker Paul Lynch has picked a wrestler of no mean ability. Koloff in his recent matches has lived up to his reputation, forcing his last three rivals to quit because of his rough tactics.

The main bout is well supported, having for a semifinal bout the veteran Stanislaus Zbyszko meeting Henry Deglane. The former holder of the world's heavyweight title, though an experienced matman, will need to be at his best to stop Deglane, who weighs 228 pounds.

Renarto Gardini, a former idol in these parts will appear with Giovanni Vargarini as an opponent. Lew Darro first introduced Gardini in Boston, and the Italian's performances on the mat have been closely followed while he has been touring the country. Two other preliminary bouts will precede this banner card. They will be announced at a later date.

MURPHY PICKED TO WIN OVER MELLO

There has been a strong swing in the betting towards Billy Murphy for his ten-round New England welterweight championship battle with Al Mello, which will be staged by the Arena A. C. at Fenway Park on next Thursday night.

Alex MacLean, who has $500 down on Murphy's chances of victory, is merely one of many who figure the Lowell Irishman is too fast and shifty for his home town rival.

Murphy has been training outside of Lowell. Tommy Lannon of Revere and Tommy Doyle of Salem, two sturdy southpaws, have been acting as his sparring partners. They have been parading to close quarters much like Mello does. Murphy's skill, speed and cutting punching power have been too much for them.

Word comes from Gus Wilson's training camp at Orangeburg, N. Y. that Mello is on razor-edge condition for his clash with Murphy. Al has been bombarding a flock of sturdy sparring mates.

Mello would rather defeat Murphy than conquer any welterweight in the world. This is due to the home town rivalry between the two boys.

It was learned today that Max Waxman, manager of Joe Dundee has promised Mello a title shot in the event he upsets Murphy.

Col. Bob McKirdy of the Arena Club has been busy completing arrangements for his first show at Fenway Park. There will be 10,000 grandstand seats which will give all a close-up of the action in the ring which will be pitched at home plate. There will be 3000 seats on the ground and many more thousand of seats in the pavilion.

The same kind of lights will be used over the ring as have made Tex Rickard's promotions so successful in New York. The ring will be as bright as it is at noonday.

The decision of the Arena Club to have a special section for the ladies and their escorts has made a hit.

Lou Finds Pitchers Have Changed Style

DEAR ROG—Maybe I'm wrong but it seems to me that pitching styles have changed a lot in the last few years, at least in the American League, and I'm wondering if you've noticed the same thing in the National.

When I broke into the league it seemed to me that every pitcher we faced almost was a fast ball pitcher. Occasionally we were called upon to look at a few hooks, but mostly they were kept outside or far inside just as teasers—and it was the old fast ball that came zipping in there for us to hit.

Now every pitcher in the league seems to be working with a change of pace and the slow stuff. Even as renowned a fast ball pitcher as Lefty Grove comes in with the slow stuff more and more, and chaps like Hoyt, Lyons and Uhle use it 75 per cent of the time.

I guess that must be a development of so much free-swing hitting. The pitchers began getting [illegible] their bats on the end and swinging from the heels, the pitchers began pulling them off balance with slow stuff. And they're still at it.

Are they working the same way over in the National League?

SPEAKING of slow stuff we've got some fellows in our league who are bearcats with it. One of the best jobs of slow ball pitching I've seen in a long time was Herbie Pennock's performance against the Athletics a few weeks ago.

Herbie had been troubled with a sore arm and the day he was asked to pitch he couldn't raise his arm above the shoulder. As a result he couldn't use that overhand curve of his at all.

He didn't throw it once during the game. He just went in there with a screw—[illegible] Herbie uses a screw ball for his slow one—and slow-one balled the A's to death.

Up until that day I never was convinced that slow stuff was worth much—but after watching Pennock I'm convinced it's great stuff. [illegible] Shorder showed us some real slow stuff too in that 1926 world series, as you may remember.

I see you've got the Braves infield pretty well settled down now, and it looks as though you had a pretty fair club. [illegible] to [illegible] a lot. You know [illegible] a whale of a ball player. George is a great fellow off the field. He was mighty popular in the American League and there isn't a man over here who isn't pulling for [illegible] to make good. And [illegible] give my regards to Joe Farrell and the rest of the gang. I see you're right up top [illegible] now and I know you'll stay there.

Yours truly,

Lou Gehrig

Sport Editorial

BOSTON fans are protesting, and justly, because Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Braves, has been suspended for five days. The punishment for the supposed crime in this case is so heavy that one must wonder how baseball officials figure things out.

The Rajah kicked at what he thought a bad third strike. Natural, proper and fitting as your fan sees baseball. The dignity of the umpire was offended, the argument was cut short by the dismissal of the manager from the game. This peeved some fans, and pop bottles were tossed.

Now Mister Hornsby and the Braves are suffering for what a few hot-headed rooters did. Neither sense nor justice to that. Baseball must be kept clean; rowdyism wiped out. That is agreed. But supposed justice that picks on a team that has been suffering all sorts of misfortune is not good for the game.

The fighting spirit is part of baseball. When league heads try to quelch it they will kill the game. Hornsby was brought here to put some life into the local ball club. If he is to get exiled for popping off a bit, he would best keep quiet.

The Braves have had more than their share of troubles. Removing their manager and incidentally the league's leading hitter for five days, is kicking a cripple that's down. Hornsby's presence would mean at least 3000 fans at the ball yard this afternoon and twice that many at the holiday double header.

Boston fans have been more than game with the Braves. Their support has been splendid, considering. But this Hornsby suspension doesn't come far from being the last straw. Placid, scrapless baseball can be played in any backyard, for all the crowds it will draw.

NICK FLATLEY.

Modern Pilgrims Appear as Originals

A group of English Congregationalist Pilgrims, who came to Boston this week in the "new Mayflower," S. S. Celtic, amazed and surprized their friends when they posed in the ancient costumes of John Alden, Priscilla Mullens and Miles Standish, with such striking resemblance as to give the impression that the dead had come to life. Alderman [illegible] Gardner, who is county councilor of Brackley, North Hamptonshire, and who was three years mayor of that city during the World War, fitted perfectly into the armor and clothes of the doughty little Captain, and [illegible] Miss Beryl Dowett of Lee, England, charmingly impersonated Priscilla standing by his side. Scarcely less striking were Rev. and Mrs. Newman Popplewell of Warrington, Lancashire, posing for John and Priscilla at that critical moment, "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?"

Every Father Has His Day

To be a man is just about the hardest thing there is; one harder, and that is to be a father and a man. When I become responsible for other lives, their views of life, their character, their health, I shoulder more than Hercules or Atlas in their prime could lift and hold aloft.

I know that what I am is all in all to Mary, Jim and Fred, and not what I pretend to be.

If I am weak of will, or find pleasure in secret and degrading ways I cannot keep it from the children of my flesh. Some invisible messenger of the air, some radio spirit waves broadcast from Station What I Am will find their subtle way to register upon the minds and hearts of those who call me father.

There is no way to trick these intricate and marvellous receiving sets I have assembled—my boys and girls.

To be a father is a harder struggle than just to be a man. Therefore a Father's Day with prayers to give him strength enough to be the parent he knows within his heart that he should be.

DIVORCE RATE ON INCREASE, SAYS EDITOR

The last edition of Zion's Herald, in an editorial, quotes figures in connection with divorce in the United States, which it maintains are worthy of careful consideration:

"Forty years ago there were 5.5 divorces to every 100 marriages, while today there are 15 divorces to every 100 marriages. This is the conclusion reached in a voluminous analysis of marriage and divorce statistics published this month by the National Government. The last few years have accelerated the divorce movement, the tables prepared by the census bureau showed. Divorces in 1926, the last year for which all figures have been set down, totaled 180,853, compared with 148,815 in 1922 and 27,919 in 1887. Five wives are granted divorces to every two husbands according to the 1926 figures. This shows increasing independence of what once was known as the weaker sex, because only four years before the ratio was four wives to two husband in the divorce decrees. Both sides of domestic disagreement choose desertion and cruelty as favorite grounds. More than 71 per cent of the divorces used these grounds."

BAPTISTS LEAVE BOSTON FOR DETROIT

Twenty-two leading Boston Baptist ministers have left Boston for the Northern Baptist convention to take place at Detroit beginning today and lasting through next week. Many others, whose names have not been announced, have also gone, either to the Detroit convention or to the Baptist World Alliance in Toronto, which is called for the week following. Altogether it has been estimated that 200 Baptists from Massachusetts have left for the West.

Among those who have gone from Greater Boston are:

Dr. Hugh A. Heath, general secretary; the Rev. Miles W. Smith, director of religious education; the Rev. Isaac Higginbotham, field secretary; Dr. J. C. Massee, Tremont Temple; the Rev. Harold Major, First Church, Boston; the Rev. C. L. Seasholes, First Church, Watertown; the Rev. W. T. Murphy, First Church, [illegible] the Rev. [illegible] First [illegible] the Rev. W. G. After sentencing, [illegible] Pilate ordered [illegible] to be scourged. [illegible] Roman soldier was [illegible] crown of thorns was placed upon his head; and a reed was given him for a sceptre [illegible] the soldiers mocked him and spat upon him.
Bearing his cross, Christ was led toward Golgotha, outside the city gates. Broken by his scourging, he fell fainting by the way. The officers seized upon a bystander, Simon of Cyrene, and forced him to carry the cross to the place of execution.
Christ refused the stupefying drink offered him. Then the legionaries crucified him between two thieves and cast lots for his garments. Above his head they nailed the inscription, "Jesus of Nazareth, king of the Jews." Noon came and darkness enveloped the land. Three hours passed and Christ raised his voice: "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me!" And then: "I thirst." A soldier offered him vinegar on a sponge. "It is finished," he cried. "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit." As death came, an earthquake shook the land and the veil of the temple was rent in twain.

A Story of Love and the French Revolution

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

THE terror of the French Revolution has not reached the old Nivernais town of Poussignot and the ci-devant Vicomte de Corbal has been accepted by his neighbors as a true Republican. But Citizen-Deputy Chauviniere from Paris has him on his list of suspects. Visiting the Chateau de Corbal, he finds Corbal with his household—the steward, Fougereot, Mme. Fougereot and their two sons, and a maidservant, Filomene. Asked why he does not get married, Corbal starts to say that it is not easy to find a woman of his own class, but checks himself. "It doesn't matter," he says. "It matters very much," says Chauviniere.

CHAPTER XII

CHAUVINIERE'S last doubt was now removed that the Vicomte de Corbal had the audacity secretly to laugh at him. But he let it pass. He had thought of something else. The sentence with which he had rebuked the revolutionary committee of Poussignot suddenly recurred to him, and he served it up to his host.

"Celibacy is an affront to Nature, and who affronts Nature is no good Republican, since republicanism is based on Nature's laws. That is why I say it matters very much."

They did not take him seriously. Old Fougereot led the laugh in which he was followed by his sons. Even Corbal smiled, whilst Fougereot's wife asked the representative if he were married himself.

"I am not. But in my case there are reasons. . . ." He stressed his words significantly, desiring them to understand that he was quite serious. But they laughed more heartily than ever.

"Oh, but the reasons, then?" the apple-faced woman demanded in raillery.

"The reasons?" He glared at her. "I am wedded to my duties. They leave no room for softer ties."

They began to realize that he was not jesting, and Corbal made haste to change the subject. If Chauviniere suffered him to have his way in this it was because he required time in which to consider the impishly wicked notion that had invaded his mind.

He was still considering it when, having concluded a visit that in other times must have appeared oddly lacking in purpose, he took his way slowly down the hill to Poussignot, and he smiled a thin-lipped smile of wicked satisfaction in a notion worthy of a psychologist and humorous philosopher such as himself.

"Celibacy is an affront to Nature." That was the new gospel he was to preach, and if he knew aught of the force of an idea, no matter how crack-brained, in Revolutionary France—especially an idea propounded by one in authority—there could be no doubt of its success.

The immediate sequel proved him correct. That new mission of his he inaugurated upon the morrow. From the rostrum of the Jacobin Society of Poussignot, a society founded by a handful of hot-eyed but very languid [illegible]—to the multitude assembled there by an invitation they were trained to regard as a command, he propounded his gospel with the frenzied rhetoric and specious cant with which he had learnt to sway the passions and rouse the emotions of unintelligent, unreasoning mobs.

He Declared France Was Being Depopulated

France was being depopulated by the events. That was his exordium. The evil brood of aristocracy which the saviours of France had destroyed, and were still destroying, must be replaced by a race of free men, born in an enlightened age, to make this France—this noble, emancipated France of Liberty—great and glorious among the nations of the earth. Replaced, too, must be those splendid patriots who were giving their lives so freely on the frontiers in the defence of their motherland from the invasion of the odious hirelings of despotism.

To neglect this was to neglect the most sacred duty that the nation had the right to claim from her children. It was to expose the Republic, through depopulation, to ultimate destruction.

All this, tricked out in perfervid imagery, in phrases the more sonorous because hollow, gradually stirred his tatterdemalion audience to enthusiastic acclamation.

Having rendered them malleable he hammered them now with that masterphrase of his:

"Celibacy is an affront to Nature!"

Upon this theme he enlarged, expounding its moral as well as its civic and national aspects, until, at last, perceiving that he had completely taken his audience [illegible] share of his cant, he [illegible] of them as a proof [illegible] and sincerity that any man who, having reached the age of [illegible], should be declared [illegible].

Thereafter he descended in great dignity to the acclamations of a multitude [illegible].

As none knew better than Chauviniere [illegible] would be safe to trifle.

The Terror Had Penetrated to This Peaceful Town

In his wake the Terror had penetrated at last to this peaceful township of the Nivernais. And in a feverish haste to give proof of patriotism there was headlong rushing into matrimony in Poussignot during the days that followed.

Within ten days the movement had reached such a pitch that it was formally proposed and unanimously agreed at the Society of Jacobins, as the citizen-representative had propounded, for a man of 25 to remain unmarried in the face of the country's needs was to give proof [illegible].

[illegible]

The hussars of the Tribunal began upon the morrow to go forth in quest of the unmarried to drag them before the bar, where each was given the option of finding a wife within three days or else submitting to conviction of incivisme, with death to follow.

The intransigent were few in number, and they paid the penalty.

And now, at last, the ground was sufficiently prepared for an attack upon the hitherto unassailable ci-devant Vicomte de Corbal and the gratification of the citizen-representative's monstrous sense of humor. A definite accusation of incivisme, hitherto almost impossible, was now rendered easy.

The accusation was laid and Monsieur Corbal de Corbal was haled before the bar of the Tribunal.

STRONGER AND SLEEPS BETTER

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ogden, Kansas.—"For three or four months before taking the Vegetable Compound I was run-down, didn't feel like doing any work and could not sleep at night. The least thing would upset me. We live on a farm and I have my housework to do but often I could not do it. My mother told me of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done her so I am taking it. I am feeling fine, can sleep good and can do my work without getting over-tired. I recommend the Vegetable Compound and will answer letters."—MRS. LESTER CUMMINGS, Box 331, Ogden, Kansas.

A Perfect Vacation

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

AT a certain age—of uncertain dreams and towering ambitions—every-day life is a mixture for Bill. His days are a scramble of work, wild plans, strenuously exercising his soul and his springy young body. He argues and enthuses and propounds and solves a thousand puzzles a day—and girls are only a part of that day.

BUT—when he slumps back in his chair and begins to wonder where and how he is going to use a vacation—and what Heaven could be like—then, at his age, the fulfillment that he sees is decidedly feminine!

Wherever the landscape is thick with girls, there will a perfect vacation be; whether it is in the scented pine woods of the North or the dazzling beaches of the far South.

And Heaven the same. Life and the work-day do not have time enough for girl faces and their laughter, their charming company—but vacations and Heaven to young Bill's notion will be where and when he has plenty of time for them—and plenty of them to smile on him! whether the landscape has a vacation look or the well-known jasper walls and golden street.—NELL BRINKLEY.

"I'm most terribly sorry, Gay," Alan was saying. [illegible] "It seems a mess, too much [illegible] on top of your own trouble."

"I wish I could do something," he added, frowning.

Alan was so good. After the way [illegible] toward him wondering. "Why are you so good to me, Alan?"

"I'm always good to [illegible] sick girls," he countered [illegible]. His smile was a thing of the lips alone, and his eyes avoided [illegible].

He waited a minute. Then he struck his palms on the arms of the chair decisively and rose. [illegible] He approached the bed [illegible] and stood beside it [illegible]. "If I can do anything," [illegible] said, "anything at all, you let me know. Won't hurt? I [illegible] again, unless you need me."

"You're too busy," she asked [illegible].

"It isn't that. As you know."

[illegible] and held it loosely in [illegible].

[illegible] "Are you sure you don't want me to [illegible] go for your mother to come on?"

"No. I'd rather they didn't know anything about it."

Alan nodded. "As you say, of course."

He started for the door. From the pillow Gay watched him.

"Alan, don't go," she [illegible] sudden.

He [illegible] on the threshold, eyebrows raised. "Hm?"

"Nothing."

"I thought you spoke."

"No. Oh, I said 'Good-bye.'"

"Good bye [illegible] good care of yourself."

Martha Lee Tells of Some Economical Egg Recipes

HUMPTY DUMPTY is having his annual tumble! And all of the king's horses and all of the king's men won't be able to put up the price of eggs again—until fall and winter come.

There is perhaps no other staple food commodity which undergoes such a [illegible] in price as does the egg. Yet the food value of eggs is just as priceless when they are inexpensive as when they are [illegible]—strange to say, they seem to taste better—at least to those who must pay the food bills when they cost the least.

So gather your eggs while you may, at the reduced prices, and break them lavishly into your mixing bowls. Omelets and custards are in order as are all of the other recipes you thought of longingly last winter but abandoned because they required too many eggs.

Here are a few recipes your family will enjoy:

Egg and Asparagus Salad with Russian Dressing—Boil one large bunch of asparagus till tender or drain the juice from one can of asparagus tips and arrange the stalks on crisp lettuce leaves. Cut six hard cooked eggs in quarters lengthwise and arrange over the asparagus tips. Sprinkle over a little salt.

Make a quick Russian dressing by heating together equal quantities of mayonnaise and chili sauce or tomato catsup. Pour a generous amount of the dressing over the salad, and garnish with riced eggs.

Eggs with Spinach a la Martin—Slightly beat three eggs. Season with one tablespoon each green and red pepper cut in strips, one-third teaspoon salt and one tablespoon of diced cooked ham. Add three tablespoons of hot water. Heat an omelet pan and pour in one and one-half tablespoons of cooking oil.

When the oil is hot pour in the omelet mixture, cook and fold over. Meanwhile heat in its own liquor the contents of one can of spinach or prepare one-half peck of fresh spinach, season and pour onto a platter. Turn the omelet onto the spinach, garnish with parsley and serve.

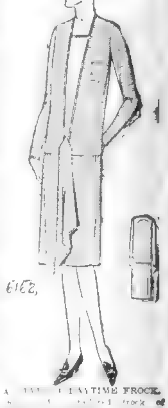
Egg and [illegible] Timbales—Beat three eggs slightly and [illegible] cup of milk, season with salt and pepper and add a few drops of [illegible]. Line well-greased timbale molds with canned pimentos [illegible] the custard [illegible] in a pan of hot water and bake in a [illegible] oven until firm. Serve on slices of [illegible] bread.

[illegible] Tear into small pieces the contents of one small jar of dried beef. Add to it [illegible] tomatoes, one-fourth cup [illegible] cheese, three drops of onion juice and a sprinkle of cayenne pepper and cinnamon. Melt two tablespoons of butter or cooking fat in a saucepan, add the mixture and heat. Beat three eggs well and [illegible] into the pan with the mixture [illegible].

[illegible] Take out the [illegible] sardines [illegible].

Season [illegible]. Add the eggs [illegible] tablespoons of butter [illegible] one cup of thin cream [illegible]. Bring to the boiling point. Add the egg and sardine mixture, heat to the boiling point and serve.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.



A [illegible] DAYTIME FROCK.

[illegible] frock of [illegible] is simply [illegible] a waist with [illegible] a straight [illegible] at the hips [illegible] trims the front of the skirt. The sleeve is close fitting.

Wool, crepe or moire would be a good choice of material for this Dress. The [illegible] and flange may be faced with contrasting material. Canton crepe is also nice for this using the reverse side of the material for the facings.

The Pattern is cut in 6 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. To make the Dress for a 38-inch size will require 3¼ yards of 35-inch material together with ¾ yard of contrasting material for facing [illegible] and underfacing on drapery. The width of the Dress at the lower edge is 56 inches.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of [illegible] in silver or stamps.

Send [illegible] in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE SPRING AND SUMMER 1928 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

Address all orders to Boston American Pattern Dept., Box 1[illegible], Times Plaza Station, Brooklyn, N. Y.

AUNT GUSSIE RENTED THE BIG TELESCOPE MAN FROM THE PARK. HE BRINGS THE TELESCOPE TO THE FLAT. HE SAYS BEFORE THE LIGHTS GO OUT HE WOULD LIKE TO HAVE THE CABINET PASS AROUND THE HAT. AFTER THIS IS DONE AUNT GUSSIE SAYS, "OH, WISE MAN OF THE PARK, WE WANT TO SHOW A SMART BOZO GATHERED AMONGST US SOMETHING OF THE WORLD BEYOND."
C'N YOU IMAGINE!
DID YA JUST HEAR WHAT YACOB JUST SPLASHED! HE SAYS THE TELESCOPE MAN POINTS HIS GLASS OUT THE WINDOW 'TILL EVERY GUY GETS A EYEFUL, 'CEPTING THE BIG OWL STUFFER FROM BALTIMORE. HE JUST LOOKS OUT THE WINDOW. THEY ALL TURN TO HIM AND SAYS: "LOOK THRU THE TELESCOPE AND LEARN SOMETHING ABOUT THE HEAVENS."
THE BIG OWL STUFFER FROM BALTIMORE SAYS: "THE WORLD IS FILLED WITH PEOPLE WHO TAKE NARROW VIEWS OF THE BEYOND AND CHANGE FROM STAR TO STAR." HE SAYS, "I HAVE BEFORE ME THE REASON WHY IT WILL TAKE PEOPLE THOUSANDS OF YEARS TO SEE THE VASTNESS OF HEAVEN, WHILE I, THE BIG OWL STUFFER FROM BALTIMORE, OBSORB IT ALL WITH A SINGLE STARE."

OTHERS HAVE FAULTS

By J. J. MUNDY

IT'S rather shocking to you sometimes to have a writer seem to ook into your secret life and take herefrom things that you though one knew.

nstinctively that writer rouses in a feeling of either fear or annism.

u wonder why editors print of the things that you can apply to you, for you feel that few persons wo'd be interested in them.

It is easy to apply to yourself certain accusations which you know exist in truth, but you don't want others to think these things about you.

Don't be sensitive.

If you have particular faults others have the same.

There is not much difference in the run of humanity.

Unless you are unusual, there are many as bad, many much worse, and few who are much better at heart than you are.

The trouble is, you think of yourself as a little bett than the average.

Very likely you are not so much better and that is what hurts.

Perhaps you don't mind being what you should not be, but you don't want others to know it.

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a young man and a young lady are introduced to each other by a friend, who speaks first, the young man or the young lady?

2—Is it proper for a young man to send gifts to a girl who is in school out of the city? Please name some gifts that he may send to her.

3—Will you tell me what kind of stationery should be used by a young man who writes his fiancee?

"EL HIJO DE ESPANA."

WHEN an introduction of any kind is made usually the people being introduced say "How do you do?" at the same time. But if either would wait for the other (which to me would seem forced), it would be the man who would wait for the woman to say the greeting first. However, for either to wait for the other would appear rather socially awkward.

2. Schools of the very best standing have very definite rules covering this, and let me warn you first to find out if there are such rules of the school attended by this young friend of yours. Flowers would probably be the only gift allowed, if any gift is allowed. Candy is usually forbidden to the girl students in private schools.

3. A young man corectly uses for his social correspondence white or light gray or Scotch granite letter paper, of a large size, and plain.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My husband and I have just had a little argument about a question which I know you will be able to answer.

This is the question: When two married couples enter a car which is driven by one of the husbands, should the two wives sit in back and the two husbands in front, or should the wife of the man who is driving sit in front with him so as to allow the other husband to sit in the rear with his wife?

CURIOUS.

THIS kind of seating arrangement isn't regulated by rule, but by inclination. Usually, in such a quartet the men like to sit together in the front and chat, while the women are chatting together in the back seat. But it is as they wish.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

What is the correct dress at an afternoon wedding, which will be held at a high-class restaurant, for the groom and the attendants? The bride is wearing afternoon apparel.

C. S.

FOR a formal wedding, formal day clothes: Cutaway coat and dark, striped trousers. For the informal wedding, a short, dark coat and striped trousers, or, most informally, a dark blue business suit.

TRUE CONFESSIONS

Dear "Hank":—

I wish to relate a sad experience.

I was coming home at 4:30 a. m. yesterday . . . Just a tired business man. I found a gentleman with a long gray beard asleep in my bed. Naturally I was very angry at this intrusion (and being of a violent disposition) I picked him up and dropped him carefully out of the window. In his fall he struck a policeman on the sidewalk, and it took four men to dig him out of the ground.

Imagine my discomfiture, upon turning up the lights, when I found I was in the wrong apartment!

Oh, the shame of it!

Henry Jones.

LEGAL BONDS TO YIELD 5.5 PER CENT

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor

Only a little while ago there was complaint about the difficulty of getting sound bonds to yield as high as 5 per cent. Perhaps the complaint was not altogether justified. It is interesting to relate that some bonds legal for investment by trust funds and savings banks in Massachusetts are today obtainable on a basis to yield 5.5 per cent, and in one or two cases even slightly better.

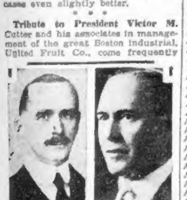
Tribute to President Victor M. Cutter and his associates in management of the great Boston industrial, United Fruit Co., come frequently and from many sources. One of the most recent is from a Boston Stock Exchange house, Tucker, Anthony & Co. are issuing a special analysis of the United Fruit Co., giving its history and lines of activity, earnings and dividend record and present position of its capital stock. They conclude, "the common stock of a company of this type with such a favorable outlook is particularly desirable as an investment over a long period of years, and purchases made at current levels should bring satisfactory results."



Col. L. P. Ayres Victor M. Cutter

Col. Leonard P. Ayres, well known observer for the Cleveland Trust. Co., looks for a mildly declining bond market, poorer prospects for speculation, but generally favorable conditions for business. This applies, as he sees it, to the second half of 1928. "Distress selling" as a result of the recent market recession appears to account for most of the bond declines registered to date.

* * *

Even in a pronounced "bear" market it has not been the experience of the past that sound bonds suffered major declines, and the same has been true of the sound preferred stocks. Common stocks have been subjected to the most marked fluctuations in past years, and this has been due to many causes. Enumeration of all these causes would furnish subject for a volume of imposing proportions.

JORDAN MARSH STAGES SHOW

The ultra-modern in food preservation, the last step in man's battle for protection in saved foods, will be shown the public all next week at Jordan Marsh Company, with a show and exhibit arranged with the Frigidaire Corporation of Dayton, O.

"To enlighten the public through the causes of food spoilage which establishes the importance of food protection," is the purpose of the week-long exhibit, according to Edward R. Mitten, director of the Jordan Marsh Company.

Development of the ice box and the modern automatic refrigerator will be depicted by use of actual models. Pictures and replicas of "keeping" methods from the time of the cave dwellers will be shown.

Harmful effects of bacteria, forcefully brought to light through microscopes and motion pictures, will be shown to impress the need of care if foods are to properly be preserved. Government health authorities labelled the exhibit "as comprehensive as had ever before been accomplished."

Decorations valued at $20,000, recently displayed in the National Electric Association at Atlantic City, will be in place for the Jordan Marsh Company showing.

A section of the ninth floor has been set aside for the demonstration and a reception committee with a staff of guides have been assigned to handle the thousands of visitors.

Present plans include interspersed musical programs between various stages of the exhibit.

Radio Dialog

GOLDMAN'S BAND, whose first broadcast of the present summer series was heard through WBZ earlier in the week, will be heard through WEEI commencing at 9:30 this evening. The sponsors of the great outdoors series of concerts arranged before the start of the season to broadcast three nights each week through WJZ and its chain, WEAF and its system, and WOR respectively. Tonight's program is of lively character, drawing from Berlioz, Beethoven, Grieg, Massenet, Wagner, Ponchielli, Nessler, Brahms and ending with Lake's arrangement of "The Evolution of Dixie."

From Symphony Hall

MR. CASELLA has arranged an enjoyable program for tonight's Pops Concert, which will be broadcast through WBZ as usual through the courtesy of Mr. Quinby. Two wedding marches, that from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream," and from Rimsky Korsakoff's "Golden Cockerell," will be featured, together with ballet music of Gluck and miscellaneous numbers. The closing group comprises three Wagner excerpts; the introduction to Act III of "Lohengrin," Forest Murmurs from "Siegfried," and the Magic Fire Music from "Die Walkuere."

Marion Davies in "The Patsy"

Are You a "Patsy"?

Are you the little drudge of the home, the butt of the family, the girl that men forget? Marion Davies, in her new picture, is a "Patsy," but she gets wise to herself. It takes some time, and no end of excitement and comedy, but that's what makes this play one of the funniest ever filmed.

PIONEERS STILL LIVE, WRITER FINDS

why didn't you stay where you went?

Did you marry the gallant young truck driver and go back to "his folks" to live, and didn't they like you and couldn't you bear them? Or were the winters too long and the summers too short, and did you miss the roses and the heliotrope too much? Well, Freida, welcome home anyhow.

MISSED THE ROSES

And may you soon have a little bungalow of your own with two or three Freidas and one or two little Oles of your own playing "the pictures" in the back yard.

"Evergreen Shoe Hospital."

"Dad's Home Cooking."

"Brother John and his Ballyhoo."

What is a ballyhoo, Brother John, won't you please come out and tell us?

Glendale—smiling in its rose garden—what a darling little house and what a neat garden and what a handsome old man watering the lawn. Let's stop and ask for another drink of water.

"Why, sure."

And nothing will do but Grandfather Smith must go out to the kitchen and get a beautiful, clear glass full of cold, clear water.

Yes, the roses are nice—would you like to see them closer? There are 70 varieties on the place. Yes, it is a great pleasure working in the garden.

Things grow so easy here.

"Yes, I live here all alone. Mother, she died a few months ago and my son wants me to come and live with him and his wife.

"But shucks—I wouldn't know what to do with myself sitting around on the porch all day—watching my daughter-in-law get ready for a bridge party. Mother, she never played bridge in her life. Seems she never had time to learn. She was always busy doing something. Mother was—making jelly or marmalade or putting up new curtains or going around with me to the real estate folks or working in the garden.

"You see, this is the way we've made our living, mother and me. We came out here ten years ago with a few hundred dollars and we bought a little place and mother she got the flowers to going and I'm kind of handy with my tools and I put on a new porch and fixed up the breakfast nook kind of fancy, and first thing you know, a couple of tourists came along and offered me a price that made me $2000 profit.

"Well, I had my eye on another place, so we sold that one out and I painted the new house all over inside and out and kind of tinkered around and put up a rose lattice and mother she made some pretty curtains and first thing you know, we made some money on that place.

JUST ASLEEP

"And we just went along that way, getting better off every time and giving folks an honest value for the money they gave us, but the other day—sometimes it seems just the other day and sometimes it seems years and years ago—mother she sort of lay down on the couch one day, said she was tired and that wasn't a bit like mother. She fell asleep. I went in by and by—there she was.

"She never woke up.

"Well, anyhow, mother was real happy fixing up the little houses and making people like them. I couldn't just sit around and do nothing. I'd keep listening for mother and expecting something that ain't never going to come."

And down at the bank they told us that grandpa had a good sizeable account and when we mentioned his name at the real estate office they brightened up and said: "Has he got that new place ready to see yet?"

And they told us that he goes out to the little graveyard every Sunday and leaves an armload of roses from his garden on little, tired grandma's grave.

And somehow I like to think that grandpa and grandma are typical Americans. Other old couples live happily together and face with smiling courage the setting of the sun. But who but an American couple would start in at sixty to building up new homes for new people and find themselves happy and prosperous doing it?

What a row of charming houses. All set in green gardens. There's one with pink doors, there's one with blue doors. See they all have roof gardens on top of them and little fountains and miniature patios—they make me think somehow of Mr. Wemmick's house.

Don't you remember? The one Dickens told about with the drawbridge and the moat all on a miniature scale? Tiny porches, little sleeping places outdoors, grills in the gardens, fountain in every patio—and a sign on every gate.

Sagebrush honey on one gate, fresh eggs on another gate, tender broilers on the next gate—and every one of the houses for sale—if you offered the little housekeeper in the bungalow apron the right price.

Great houses further on, set in orchards and vineyards—cool and prosperous, every one of them for sale—if you offer the right price.

"Tourist village"—that's a new kind of auto-camp, with real houses all furnished, and dancing platforms and swimming baths, and a Chautauqua auditorium an da little schoolhouse and a little snappy back-eyed teacher standing in the door of it.

You can rent one of the houses for the day or the week or the month or the year and send your children to school to the little black-eyed school teacher and wake up some Monday morning and decide to move on, put the typewriter and the suit cases and the kiddie car in the automobile and be off to a new village in a new valley with new neighbors.

I wonder if you'd carry your same old idea along with you.

ALL URGED TO CONTRIBUTE TO FLIERS' FUND

in yours, no matter how little.

As the Australian Government has given the two Australian pilots of the plane $25,000 in recognition of their part in the hazardous undertaking, prominent Americans are of the opinion that it is eminently fitting the two American members of the crew be rewarded with a substantial good will gift from their countrymen.

It was with this thought in mind that the management of Hearst papers started the fund with a contribution of $5000.

One of the most recent contributions came from Thomas H. Green, president of Boston City Council. Other recent contributors are Dist. Atty. William J. Foley and Atty. Robert Gallagher.

Praise of the plan comes from Capt. Robert F. Raymond, member of Boston Municipal Airboard; Capt. Christopher W. Ford, air officer at Boston Army Base, and William P. Long, chairman of Boston Park Commission, who says he wishes Boston Airport would be turned over to Boston park department, in which case it would be turned into a real airport without delay.

(D. P. U. 3269)

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts

In Department of Public Utilities

Boston, June 13, 1928.

On the petition of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company for approval of a contract with the New England Fuel and Transportation Company for the purchase of gas, the Commission of the Department of Public Utilities will give a public hearing to all parties interested at its hearing-room, 166 State House, Boston, on Thursday, the twenty-first day of June current, at ten-thirty o'clock in the forenoon.

And the petitioner is required to give notice of said hearing by serving a copy hereof upon the respective mayors of Boston, Chelsea, Newton, Waltham and Quincy and upon the respective chairmen of the selectmen of Brookline, Milton, Watertown, Wellesley and Weston three days at least prior to the date of said hearing, to publish a copy hereof in the Boston Post, Boston Herald, Boston Globe, Boston American, Boston Traveler, Boston Transcript, Christian Science Monitor, Chelsea Record, Newton Graphic, Waltham News-Tribune, Quincy Patriot-Ledger and Watertown Tribune-Enterprise, in each of said papers once at least prior to the date of said hearing, and to make return of service and publication at the time of hearing.

By order of the Commission,
(Signed) ANDREW A. HIGHLANDS,
Secretary.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

Boston Should Lead

Every Citizen Should Help Chamber of Commerce Make This the World's Greatest Convention City

In Boston during 1928 approximately $22,500,000 will be spent by delegates to conventions and by the relatives and friends accompanying them in the Hub during their stay.

For this influx of visitors, the Boston citizen, who ultimately is the beneficiary of any increase in his city's business, has the Convention Bureau of the Boston Chamber of Commerce to thank.

The Convention Bureau has led in bringing conventions, big and little, to Boston until 1928 will see a larger number in session here than ever before. The Bureau, in co-operation with hotel men and others who benefit directly from the convention business, is hard at work in an effort to better the present mark for this year and surpass 1928 by the conventions of 1929.

No city in the world is able to offer as much to the tourist or convention delegate as is Boston. Hotel accommodations are ample, beaches are within short rides, the historic attractions are almost innumerable, educational and industrial institutions of the Hub are world famous.

Within easy riding distances are the Berkshires, the White and Green Mountains and countless other places of scenic interest.

Boston should be the world's greatest convention city. The Convention Bureau and associates are working to make it so. But every citizen of Greater Boston, individually, should work to the same end.

An Excellent Work

The Dispensary for Women Is Doing It; Ample Funds Are Required at Once

It is with interest that we note the excellent work accomplished by charitable agencies in the city of Boston during the past year.

Boston stands among the leading cities in the country, or in the world, in offering speedy and efficient aid for those who are unable to pay for medical attendance or other needs.

One of the foremost agencies in the city is the Dispensary for Women situated at 633 Massachusetts avenue. At this moment a drive for $10,000 is on by the officials of the dispensary.

Private individuals, stage stars, public spirited men and women, and scores of humble citizens have done their parts, but still contributions are far below what an organization such as this one deserves.

To insure the health of poor persons in the city, especially those who cannot afford to pay even the ordinary medical fees, this work must go on.

It is up to the people of the city of Boston to see that this work goes on. Good wishes are all very well, but a few dollars in hard cash would be much more appreciated by the physicians at the dispensary and their thousands of patients.

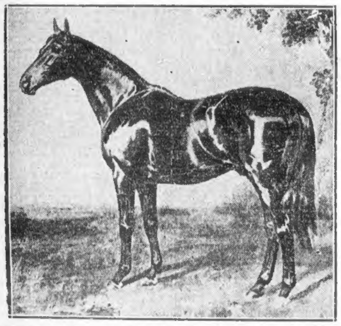
During the past score or more of years that the dispensary has been in operation thousands of women have been treated.

During the years to come, thousands of other women will need treatment.

It is up to us to see that they get it.

If MEN Were Like Horses

And If Success Did Not Spoil Them and Their Sons



GAINSBOROUGH A MAGNIFICENT HORSE

This famous horse stands out among successful horses in Great Britain. He won the "Triple Crown"—namely, the Two Thousand Guineas, the Ascot Gold Cup and the St. Leger races. At three years of age, covered with success and glory, he retired to a breeding establishment to perpetuate his good qualities in other horses

Soon, his sons and daughters had won eighty-three races worth $320,000.

Race horses are not important in the lives of BUSY men. They represent amusement for those that cannot think, allow gambling to take the place of thinking, and imagine that the work of a trainer and a jockey adds something to their glory.

This picture makes you wish that men were as wise as horses, carried their honors as sensibly, and handed their wonderful abilities down to their children.

After he became famous, this horse was as modest as ever. He merely wanted a decent bed to sleep on, and his fair share of oats. He didn't crave magnificent stables in a

AGAINST CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE League to Abolish Capital Punishment, a national organization, with offices in New York, sends out a pamphlet giving succinctly the reasons for its existence.

These reasons cannot be too often stated, as the objection to capital punishment is not a mere sentimental one, but is based upon fact, results and science.

The object of any punishment at all is two-fold.

First, to see that the offender shall not be guilty of a similar offense and, secondly, to deter others from imitating him. It stands to reason that when a man has been hanged it does him no good, while, in the second place, attention is called to the fact that as a matter of statistics capital punishment is not a deterrent. In states and countries which have already abolished the death penalty murder has not increased. In most of them it has decreased. This is not sentiment. It is cold fact.

Secondly, capital punishment is irrevocable. There have been cases of the execution of innocent men. No punishment should be such that it cannot be reversed in case the victim is found to be innocent.

Third, more and more juries refuse to convict in first degree murder cases, because they object to the penalty. Thus instead of protecting society it endangers it. It allows the guilty to go free simply because it is hard to find twelve persons who want to kill a man. In states which have abolished capital punishment there is a higher percentage of convictions.

Fourth, the death penalty advertises murder. The psychological effect of its publicity is demoralizing.

Fifth, a second death cannot undo the first, and killing a man for a crime inflicts shame and suffering on his innocent relatives, at the same time merely sating the desire for vengeance on the part of the victim's friends.

Sixth, it demoralizes prison officials and prison inmates. The majority of the prison wardens of the United States and almost all modern penologists are against the death penalty.

Seventh, somehow our fundamental belief is in the sanctity of human life and we will never get over a feeling of repulsion when the state imitates the murderer.

Eighth, many states already have abolished capital punishment, to wit:

Maine, Rhode Island, Michigan, Kansas, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota and Minnesota.

Many countries have abolished it.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHEN I was young I thought the greatest courage lay in doing risky things. Going into a burning house. Nursing in a smallpox epidemic. Grabbing a runaway horse. I still admire the bravery of those who perform such deeds but I do not longer think these facts express the highest form of courage. There is something much more dificult to do than entering a burning building or facing crazed animals. THE BRAVEST THING A HUMAN BEING CAN DO IS TO HOPE WHEN ALL REASON FOR HOME SEEMS GONE.

Few of us are called on to perform spectacular acts, but this supreme test of courage comes to nearly everyone sooner or later. And I think it is well for every man to have some confession of faith which will sustain him in the dark hour. This is mine, and for many years it has been my marching song.

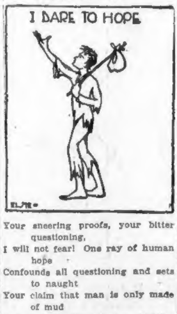
I DARE TO HOPE!

I dare to hope that things aren't what they seem.
That life is more than this brief tragic dream,
This stumbling race between our birth and death.

I dare to hope life has an aim and plan.
A purpose which pervades each smallest act
And that there is a meaning to our pain,
A reason for our blind dumb agony.

I dare to hope there is a God above,
I dare to hope He made me, for His child
And set within the poor clay of my heart
A spark of His own beauty and His power,
His will to grow, His hunger for the right.
I dare to hope this struggle in the night
Is but that spark's fierce struggle to be free
And cleansed of all the dross that binds it now.

So daring, I go on, though all is lost
That once, I thought, made my poor life worth while.
And in the darkness I now set my faith
Like a bright shield before my bleeding heart
And cry, "Come on! I'm ready! Bring your doubt!



Your sneering proofs, your bitter questioning,
I will not fear! One ray of human hope
Confounds all questioning and sets to naught
Your claim that man is only made of mud
And that his life is but a mocking dream.

"As long as morn shall follow after night,
As long as winter shall give way to spring,
As long as love shall conquer selfishness,
And courage triumph over our brute fear,
So long shall I believe in God and Man,
And to the darkness cry, I DARE TO HOPE!"

New York Day by Day
by O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, June 16—There are rumors several poppy parlors have found lodgement amid bizarre setting in the topless towers of Manhattan's skyscrapers. These are not for the pasty addicts of the dingy Chinatown cellars, but for the rich who have the habit.

Thus, so high above the city's incoherent thunder, they may dream their purple dreams with little fear of the raiding axe. It has been estimated there are some 20,000 pipe smokers in greater New York, and a large percentage are reputed to be those reared in culture.

Young thrill seekers dallying along the primrose path of Broadway are frequent among those who develop the "yen." Late and hectic parties often burn emotions to such a low ebb that "trying it once just for fun" reaps its toll.

It is reported two recent debutantes are now in sanitariums in the effort to be freed of the habit the underworld calls "knocking the gong around." It used to be narcotic agents could detect an opium addict by the sickly white pallor indulgence caused.

But today that is difficult. Artificial tanning will produce the bronze of an autumn leaf. The confirmed opium addict rarely drinks intoxicating liquor. A combination of the two results in violent nausea. The addict after a spree is consumed by the "shakes" and a ravaging thirst for water.

Broadway points an accusing finger at several celebrities as being among those who hit the pipe, yet it is probable this is mere gossip. Those who indulge are so clever in concealing their vice that they have been able to fool doctors for years.

The low type of the speakeasy and night club are hang-outs for cicerones of the hop bazaars. Usually addicts themselves, they are able to throw out conversational "feelers" for prospective patrons. Prices range from $10 in the dives to $150 a night in the gilded salons.

RACE track touts are said to be the easiest of all prey to opium addiction. Eighty per cent of them are reputed users of some sort of drug. The gangster rarely uses opium. He whips up courage with cocaine.

FOUR plays to be unveiled on Broadway this next season were turned out by active New York newspapermen. Two smashing hits of last season were written by members of the same guild. It can no longer be said with a hoot that every newspaperman tries to write a play. They now do it, hooray! and successfully.

THE charge that the reporter has never been accurately portrayed on the stage was also disproved last season, when two in the same play ran so true to type that you could almost hear the roar of the city room when they talked over the telephone to their offices. Next season Russell Crouse, a real reporter, is scheduled to take a reportorial role in a play by a newspaperman. He should be able to lend a distinct histrionic charm, for no matter how much they deny the soft impeachment, most newspapermen are pretty much actors. In fact, a bunch of them grouped in front of the Lambs would not look at all out of place. They simulate the same nonchalance and worldly sophistication, as well as being gifted with similar vanities. The indefinable qualities that made the actor human and likable will be found in the average reporter.

THE first reporter to strike pay dirt in playwrighting in the past decade is Eugene Walter, who immediately, actor-like, blossomed forth with spats, cane, tweedy things and gaudy motor cars. The legend grew that he spent his first year sleeping on benches in public parks, while hawking plays along the Rialto. The truth is that, like all good reporters, he always had a job, and the nearest he came to a park bench was to stop there now and then to puff a good cigar.

Find the reporter who is two jumps ahead of the sheriff in New York and you will probably find he has climbed into spats just like an actor.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

How many things served us yesterday fo rarticles of faith which today are fables to us!
—Montaigne.

We must look to the mind, and not to the outward appearance.
—Aesop.

Persistent kindness conquers those who are evilly disposed. —Seneca.

I have always observed that to succeed in the world one must have the appearance of a fool, and be wise.
—Montesquieu.

It is the first of all problems for a man to find out what kind of work he is to do in this universe.
—Carlyle.

It is a maxim that those to whom everybody allows the second place have an undoubted title to the first.
—Swift.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

A TASK is here no hand save yours can do,
A task which through the ages waited you.
Men high and low have lived and dreamed and died
While yet this need remained, unsatisfied.
No other hand could touch this harp to song,
No other brain could right this ancient wrong,
No other strength could break from this duress,
No other eye could see this loveliness.
Doubt not, but give all force, all faith you own,
Unsought or sought, this task is yours alone!

DOZEN different places, and he did not want to pile up in banks millions of bushels of oats that he could never use. Also the large sums that he earned by his work were NOT used to make fools of his sons and daughters. They, the sons and daughters, also worked and did well.

Let us not complain, however. Providence knows what is best for us. If the ablest MEN had the ablest SONS, the human race would soon be divided up into "ability and worthlessness," which would be a bad thing for us all.
